8 Steel Companies Indicted For Secretly Trying To Fix Prices

NEW YORK (AP) —Eight of the nation's giant steel companies were indicted on federal antitrust charges Tuesday — an outgrowth of the dramatic showdown over pricing two years ago this week between President John F. Kennedy and the industry.

The defendants, including the industry's No. 1 firm, U.S. Steel, were accused of conspiring in secret hotel room meetings to fix prices in the $3.6 billion carbon sheet steel business. Two steel executives also were named in the federal grand jury indictment.

The government claimed the price fixing in sheet steel increased the cost to consumers of such items as auto bodies, washing machines, kitchen cabinets, refrigerators, office furniture and other products widely in demand. About one-third of all finished steel mill products are made of sheet steel.

The antitrust indictment was the latest in a long series of price fixing prosecutions brought by the government against U.S. Steel and other producers.

The grand jury of 16 men and seven women began their investigation last October as a follow-up to an earlier panel's inquiry into the April 10, 1962, attempt by the steel industry to raise prices $6 a ton.

Kennedy led a fight against the 1962 price rise, and three days later the steel companies retreated and withdrew the increase.

Only two of the major steel producers at that time opposed price mark-ups—Inland and Kaiser Steel Corp. The two firms were not named in Tuesday's indictment, although the grand jury had subpoenaed their records.

The eight defendant firms are liable to fines up to $50,000 each if convicted. The two indicted executives could get similar fines, plus prison sentences of one year each.

Sheet steel is sold by the industry at a base price. To this is added extra assessments for the tailoring of the steel to specifically ordered size, gauge, quality, metallurgical content and other processing requirements.

It was these extra charges, the government claimed, that were rigged by the producers in secret meetings in New York's Biltmore and Sheraton-East hotels from 1955 to 1961.

As the result of the alleged price fixing, the government charged that purchasers of sheet steel were "deprived of the benefit of free and open competition."

The firms and individuals indicted, with their standing as to size in the industry indicated in parenthesis:

U.S. Steel 1 and its assistant general manager for administrative services, James P. Barton.

Bethlehem Steel Co. (2) and its former assistant vice president of sales, W. J. Stephens, who now is president of Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp.

Republic Steel Corp. (3), Jones and Laughlin (4), National Steel Corp. (5), Armco Steel Corp. (6), Wheeling Steel Corp. (11), and Great Lakes Steel Corp.

Named as co-conspirators, but not defendants, and expected to testify against the others were Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. (7), Pittsburgh Steel Co. (14) and Granite City Steel Co.

10,000 Urge Bible-Reading

ELMIRA, N. Y. (AP) — Approximately 10,000 persons in Chemung County have signed petitions urging Congress to enact legislation that would permit Bible-reading and recitation of prayers in public schools.

The drive for signature of persons over 21 began March 22 and will continue through April.

Reds Aim At Europe, Rusk Says

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Tuesday night the Soviets have many more missiles aimed at Western Europe than at the United States. He put the total zeroed in on Allied countries in Europe at several hundred.

Rusk made the statement in arguing that the Allies still need NATO for the purpose for which it was first set up 15 years ago this month — protection against Communist power. Further, he said, they need "new patterns of collective action" from Cuba to Viet Nam.

"Although the Central European front remains quiet," he said in a speech to the Overseas Press Club, "massive Soviet ground and nuclear forces are still arrayed against Europe.

"In the absence of assured arrangements for the mutual reduction of arms, it would be foolhardy to dismantle the military strength of NATO.

KC Votes In Anti-Bias Law

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Expansion of a Kansas City ordinance forbidding racial discrimination at nearly all types of business establishments apparently won narrow approval in a public referendum Tuesday.

The unofficial count from all 240 precincts was 45,245 for to 44,043 against, a margin of 1,202. Still to be counted are an estimated 500 to 700 absentee ballots.

In a sense, the turnout reflected the feeling of voters on the controversial civil rights issue. Of the city's 209,000 registered voters, about 30,000 are Negroes.

Scranton To Bow Out, Paper Says

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Inquirer, in a copyrighted story Tuesday night said Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton will announced Thursday that he will not accept a draft at the Republican national convention.

In a story by its Harrisburg correspondent, Saul Kohler, the Inquirer said a three-paragraph announcement in which Scranton will disavow his candidacy for President of the United States will be made at a news conference scheduled for 11:30 a.m. Thursday.

The story said the governor met with members of his staff Tuesday at the executive mansion in an effort to persuade him to change his mind.

Scranton returned from a Florida vacation shortly before the staff meeting took place.

Scranton's press secretary, Jack L. Conmy, would neither confirm nor deny the story. He said:

"I can't tell you what the governor might say or might not say on Thursday. It's true, we were at the Gap (Indiantown Gap, the executive mansion) tonight.

Asked if the national political situation was discussed, he said: "That subject came up, sure."

Asked if he knew of a three-paragraph announcement Scranton planned to make on Thursday, he said that if such an announcement were to be made, he as press secretary would certainly know about it.

Asked if it would be made, he said: "I can't deny it or confirm it."

William Keisling, the governor's secretary, was unavailable for comment.

GOP Boosts Demo

Wallace Strong In Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, his challenge of administration civil rights policies buoyed by thousands of Republicans in Wisconsin's open presidential primary Tuesday, hailed the prospect of 200,000 votes Tuesday night as "victory enough."

Wisconsin's Democratic Gov. John W. Reynolds, the favorite son who with President Johnson's blessing headed a slate pledged to the President, said Wallace's mounting totals showed that Republicans staged a "tremendous crossover that is an old Wisconsin custom." Voters are not required to state party affiliation and may vote in either primary.

"Gov. Wallace is demonstrating that we have a lot of people in Wisconsin who are prejudiced," Reynolds said, "but that's not new."

During the campaign, Wallace said repeatedly that he would "shake the eye teeth of national leaders in both parties" if he attracted 25,000 votes.

As the counting of the state's 3,522 precincts passed the one-third mark, he was sweeping up a steady 20 per cent of the total vote.

Wisconsin hasn't voted Democratic in a presidential election since 1948.

The unopposed Republican favorite son, Rep. John W. Byrnes, was running a little ahead of Richard M. Nixon's 1960 pace in a similar primary, indicating a turnout close to the 1.2 million record set that year.

With 1,372 of 3,552 precincts reporting, the vote was: Reynolds 123,418, Wallace 55,077 and Byrnes 84,178.

Wallace said he was "pretty happy" at his showing.

There was little question that Reynolds would win. The question was by how much.

The voting will select 46 Democratic convention delegates, and 30 for the Republicans. Reynolds is pledged to Johnson, Byrnes is uncommitted.

Bulletin

NEW YORK (AP) — A Pan American World Airways plane coming in from Puerto Rico overshot a runway at Kennedy Airport Tuesday night and landed in a ditch. Police said there were some casualties but they were expected to be "at a minimum."

The plane carried 149 persons. Fire officials said all were removed from the plane quickly and foam was spread over the area to prevent fire. The passengers were being taken by bus to other airport areas.

The plane, carrying 140 passengers and a crew of 9 was inbound from San Juan, P.R., and landed in a light fog. The control tower said the plane apparently had gone off the end of a runway and come to a halt in the ditch.

Charles H. Boehm

Dr. Boehm To Leave State Post

HARRISBURG (AP) — Dr. Charles H. Boehm, state superintendent of public instruction, submitted his resignation Tuesday to accept an educational post with the U.S. foreign aid program.

Both he and his staff emphatically denied that he is stepping down from the $20,000-a-year state job because of differences with the Scranton Administration.

Effective date of Boehm's resignation is expected to be decided Wednesday after a conference with Gov. Scranton at 11:30 a.m. Scranton is scheduled to return Tuesday night from a two-week vacation at Hobe Sound, Fla.

The governor's office said no one is under consideration at the moment to succeed Boehm and indicated that one of his deputies may be named acting superintendent.

Rumors of Boehm's resignation began circulating around Capitol Hill Monday, but weren't confirmed until Tuesday when the 61-year-old educator said he expects to head an American team of educators to evaluate schools in foreign countries for the U.S. government.

Boehm has served as superintendent of public instruction since 1956 when he was named by former Gov. George M. Leader. Four years later he was retained by the Lawrence Administration. His present term was to have expired Sept. 12.

Although a Republican, he and Scranton had their differences and he was not regarded a member of the Scranton cabinet.

Scranton's school reorganization bill, passed in the 1963 session of the legislature, stripped Boehm of all policy-making authority in operation of state-supported educational programs.

Hurls Himself In Ditch

Tractor Crushes Minister In Rights Demonstration

CLEVELAND (AP)—An earth moving tractor ran over and killed a young Presbyterian minister during a civil rights demonstration at a school site Tuesday.

His death touched off rock-throwing, car-smashing disorders by a crowd which at nightfall numbered about 3,500, mostly Negroes.

Police used tear gas to disperse the crowd.

The Rev. Bruce W. Klunder, 27, a white Presbyterian minister who had participated in a number of demonstrations for civil rights, was dead when he was lifted from the dirt on which he had thrown himself, face down, to block the tractor.

"I backed up and didn't know that man was back of me," said John White, 33, Mentor, Ohio, the driver. White was released by police, pending outcome of a coroner's ruling.

Some witnesses said Klunder had called to the driver when he threw himself on the ground. White said he saw two girls and a man who had thrown themselves in front of his tractor and heard nothing from the rear.

"I started to back up because my shovel was hanging over them (the three in front)," White said. He said the first he knew Klunder was on the ground was when he had backed all the way over him and saw the body.

White tried to reach the minister, but demonstrators surged over the tractor and began to pummel him. The tractor tread passed over Klunder's shoulders.

As word of the minister's death swept through the crowd which then numbered about 500, there was a stunned silence. The earth-moving machinery was stopped and appeals were made for the crowd to disperse.

Instead it grew and soon the air was filled with rocks, bottles and bricks which the demonstrators hurled at police. Mounted police forced the crowds back from the school site and set up barricades, but the violence spread to adjacent areas.

At least seven injuries were reported, along with 22 arrests, when darkness came.

The demonstration had started as a peaceful picketing protest against construction of the new public elementary school in the Negro neighborhood. The demonstrators said it would cause "resegregation" of the neighborhood's [illegible] pupils, who were integrated into classes of predominantly white schools nearby after violent demonstrations in late January and early February.

An assistant city law director announced on a police bullhorn that the project was being closed because "we can't protect the workmen and bystanders."

In Belgium

Hospitals Jammed, MDs Still Strike

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — With hospitals jammed to overflowing, Belgium's 12,000 striking doctors and dentists threatened Tuesday night to call off skeleton emergency services they have operated since their strike began seven days ago.

The medical men, protesting the left-leaning coalition government's socialized medical program, demanded once more that the plan be dropped. Premier Theo Lefevre's government showed no signs of complying.

Hospitals were swarming with patients and weary nurses struggled to keep up with the influx. Beds were set up in corridors. The doctors refuse to make home calls to treat the ill.

In a 1,000-word statement, the doctors said they would quit these emergency services if the physicians were molested or victimized.

In the statement issued to newsmen, the doctors said the new medical law would prevent the efficient performance of their professional duties and make physicians prey to a government-backed snooping system.

A spokesman for the doctors said normal medical and dental care will only be restored in this nation of nine million people when the government takes steps in Parliament to dismantle the controversial legislation.

Medical treatment is provided now for serious cases only under the arrangements set up by the strikers. All patients are taken to hospitals.

Hospitals throughout the country are packed and the nursing staffs are suffering from fatigue, government sources said.

Johnson Remains Silent On Sipping, Speeding Stories

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House was silent Tuesday on reports President Johnson and his wife drove with one hand and sipped beer with the other while taking reporters on a tour of their LBJ ranch in Texas over the Easter weekend.

Newsmen who rode with the President said that on one occasion he gunned his Lincoln Continental up a long hill and the driver of an oncoming car veered off the road.

White House press secretary George Reedy said he had no personal knowledge of the incidents and could not comment.

Newsmen said Mrs. Johnson drove her Lincoln Continental at a leisurely pace, taking sips of beer from a paper cup as she gave a running commentary on the ranch, its cattle and points of interest. They said that at times she drove along the ranch roads with one hand on the wheel as she held the cup.

When Johnson was asked at a news conference last Saturday about reports he drove at speeds up to 90 miles an hour he said he was unaware he had ever exceeded the Texas speed limit of 70.

Reedy was asked for comment after Time and Newsweek magazines printed accounts of the tours. Newsweek made no reference to beer drinking.

Time said that when Johnson raced his car up the hill one passenger groaned: "That's the closest John McCormack has come to the White House yet." House Speaker McCormack, D-Mass., is next in line of succession to the presidency.

Newsweek said that after the hill-passing incident, Johnson pulled up at a ranch house and asked: "Is the (Secret) Service still with us?" The magazine said the car containing the security men had been left behind on the highway, "caught behind cars Mr. Johnson had passed on the way."

Dixie Hit By Floods

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Torrential rain sent flash floods swirling over lowlands in four Southeastern states Tuesday.

The threat of tornadoes, hail and high wind damage was added to water damage that came on the heels of record-breaking cold weather. The heavy rain hampered farmers, some of whom lost peach and vegetable crops in unseasonably cold weather last week.

N.Y. Bids Farewell To MacArthur

NEW YORK (AP)—The people of New York City said farewell Tuesday to General of the Army Douglas MacArthur amid a scene of martial splendor and the echoes of America's wars.

By the thousands, they filed slowly past his bier in the 7th Regiment Armory on Park Avenue.

New York was MacArthur's last home. He had lived here since 1951 when he came home from the Far East, a hero, and at the same time the central figure in a raging controversy over the Korean War.

The city's residents, the dignitaries and the humble, paid his memory an impressive tribute Tuesday.

Officially, it began when Lt. Gen. Garrison H. Davidson, commander of the U.S. 1st Army, placed a wreath from President Johnson at the foot of the casket. That was at 9:30 a.m.

But for many persons, the day started almost two hours earlier. Before 8 o'clock, they began lining up behind police barriers a block away from the armory. Soon, several hundred were massed there — although the general's body was to be on view here for 2 hours or more.

Soon, the number swelled to thousands.

MacArthur's widow, Jean Marie MacArthur, and his son, Arthur, 26, arrived at 9:15 a.m.

The honor guard of five, representing each of the armed services, stood at attention around the casket.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, United Nations Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, U.S. Senator Jacobs K. Javits, New York's Mayor Robert F. Wagner, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, former Postmaster General James A. Farley, former Secretary of the Army Kenneth W. Royall, Jack Howard and William Randolph Hearst Jr., newspaper executives and editors, were among the first arrivals.

The line from the street began to move through the huge front doors of the armory.

State News Roundup

Gov. Charged With 'Payoff'

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Gov. William Scranton came under the fire of a union leader and a state assemblyman for appointing Dr. Ivor Fenton as medical director for the Department of Welfare as a "political payoff."

Assemblyman Thomas F. Lamb of the State and Local Welfare Commission said Fenton has not practiced medicine consistently for 25 years and doubted the 75-year-old appointee could contribute much to the state.

Joseph H. Sabel, president of Local 590 of the Amalgamated Food Employees Union, charged Fenton was rewarded for help in lining up votes for passage of the reformed unemployment compensation measure.

"This particular political payoff is especially offensive to labor because it results from your strong arm tactics in lining up votes for the unemployment compensation revision, the gravest legislative insult to labor which has occurred in Pennsylvania," Sabel told Scranton in a telegram.

Industrial Grants OK

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The state Commerce Department Tuesday approved $10,762 in industrial development promotion grants for Lackawanna industrial fund enterprises.

The Lackawanna County group received $5,876 for its 1963 allocation and another $4,886 to be applied to the five-month period between Feb. 1 and June 30 of this year.

Other grants include: Beaver County Industrial Development Agency, $5,013; Greater Johnstown Chamber of Commerce, $1,392.

Allentown-Easton Train Run Halted

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Central Railroad of New Jersey received Public Utility Commission permission Tuesday to drop a daily train between Easton and Allentown, beginning April 26.

The railroad said it previously had received authorization to halt the train at Raritan, N.J. It currently continues to Phillipsburg, N.J., Easton, Bethlehem and Allentown.

The commission said an investigation showed little use was made of the train at the three Pennsylvania stops.

Japan-State Trade Boosted

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — "Pennsylvania - Japan Trade Week" will reach a peak Wednesday when government and business officials meet here to seek ways of booming the Keystone state's business with the Far Eastern nation.

An all-day conference will not lack for big names. Ryuchi Takeuchi, Japanese ambassador to the United States, and Gov. William W. Scranton are listed as featured speakers.

A series of panels, lectures and private discussions on bread-and-butter aspects of business and foreign trade will be held.

The state currently exports to Japan at the rate of more than $60 million a year and is pointing to a 50 per cent boost by 1970. Scranton outlined this goal last February in issuing a proclamation, which declared April 5-11 as "Pennsylvania - Japan Trade Week."

Union Obeys Court Order

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Striking union members Tuesday obeyed a Delaware County Court order restricting picketing at the Westinghouse Electric Co. plant in nearby Lester but more than 1,000 men lined a nearby driveway and harassed salaried workers entering the factory.

The court had ordered Local 107, United Electrical Workers Ind. to restrict picketing to three men walking at least 10 feet apart.

But the other striking workers shouted and jeered as employes entered the gates and on one occasion stopped an automobile, broke the windwhield and disconnected engine wires.

The walkout started a week ago when the company furloughed production workers because of reaction by union members to disciplinary layoffs given to some employes.

About 4,500 employes working three shifts are involved.

Reapportionment Law Goes To Court

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Pennsylvania Supreme Court took under advisement Tuesday a suit by five Pennsylvania taxpayers charging the 1963 reapportionment act is unconstitutional.

The taxpayers asked the state's highest tribunal "to correct the evils" they claim deny equal representation in the general assembly for all citizens.

Walter Alessandroni
Attorney General

The attack on the reapportionment plan, which allegedly discriminates against voters in Philadelphia and other large cities in favor of rural areas, was brought by the Philadelphia Committee of Seventy, a civic watchdog group. Bucks County political leaders also seek relief.

The Supreme Court took original jurisdiction of the suit on Jan. 16, but sent it back to Commonwealth Court in Dauphin County on Jan. 24 with orders to take testimony and make findings.

Returns Suit

The Commonwealth Court returned the suit on March 20, with a transcript of testimony taken at a hearing Feb. 6, together with 76 findings.

Tuesday's special session of the Supreme Court was called last week by Chief Justice John C. Bell, Jr.

The Committee of Seventy suit is directed mainly at clauses in the constitution limiting Philadelphia to eight state senators, and the formula setting the number of members of the House of Representatives.

Committee of seventy attorneys Arthur E. Newbold 3rd, and Edward E. Russell argued that the contitutional provisions permit smaller counties more House representation than Philadelphia where full population ratios are required.

No Injunction

Newbold told the court he was not seeking an immediate injunction to halt the April 28 primary election.

"We do not consider that it would be in the public interest to have the entire machinery for the forthcoming primary election disrupted at this late date," Newbold said.

Atty. Gen. Walter E. Alessandroni and deputy Edward Friedman countered by declaring the apportionment method "provides a fair and rational system free from invidious discrimination."

The attorney general said the facts clearly demonstrate that any deviation which may result from Pennsylvania's constitutional system of apportionment is "rational, justifiable and can, under no circumstances, be defined as invidious."

Discrimination in and of itself does not violate the 14th amendment, he said. It must be "arbitrary and capricious" and reflect no policy.

Legislative Apportionment

The issue of legislative apportionment, the attorney general said, can not be decided upon the basis of the philosophy of political scientists.

Specifically, Newbold charged that two sections of the state constitutional are unconstitutional: (1) that no more than one-sixth of the 50 senators may be elected from one city or county and (2) that less populous counties are favored over more populous counties in the apportionment of representatives of the state House of Representatives.

Alesandroni argued there is no evidence to disclose any discrimination "resulting from the constitutional limitation that no city or county shall elect more than one-sixth of the number of senators." He also denied that present constitutional provisions favor rural districts in electing members of the state house.

Chief Justice Bell indicated that the reapportionment wrangle will not be determined finally until it goes before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Lillian Reis Rages At Mention Of 'Chiseler'

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (UPI) — The word "chiseler" sent showgirl Lillian Reis into a rage twice Tuesday at her burglary trial and an assistant district attorney warned her to keep herself under control or face contempt charges.

The action happened before the defense rested its case in the burglary trial yesterday.

Her first reaction to the charge caused near-hysteria in the former Philadelphia nightclub owner, charged with masterminding the John B. Rich burglary here in 1959, and a brief recess was called in the trial.

When court resumed, Asst. Dist. Atty. Calvin J. Friedberg continued questioning Miss Reis about her finances and again charged she was a chiseler.

Miss Reis again shouted a denial. Friedberg then warned her of a possible contempt action and told her to stop making speeches.

Friedberg asked Miss Reis about $2,000 contributed by her free-spending boy friend Clyde (Bing) Miller to her parents for a birthday party for her brother.

"I kept it, the money," she said.

"Who was chiseling who," Friedberg asked.

"I was not chiseling," Miss Reis shouted.

"Wasn't that money meant for your parents," she was asked.

"They told me to keep it," she said. "My mother wouldn't take it."

Miss Reis then told Friedberg "I wish we would get to the burglary. I'm anxious to defend myself."

Fair Trade Repeal Now Under Fire

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —The state Supreme Court was told Tuesday that the rights of manufacturers and retailers who sell $1 billion worth of brand name products a year will be affected unless the Pennsylvania fair trade act is restored.

The state Supreme Court, on March 26, struck down the 29-year-old law as unconstitutional.

Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., manufacturers of Squibb products, petitioned for reargument of the case.

The result of the decision is to permit retailers in Pennsylvania to set their own prices so long as they are not less than actual cost to the retailer. That would be a violation of the unfair trade act.

The state Supreme Court's decision was given on an appeal by White Cross Stores, a Pittsburgh discount drugstore chain with 34 outlets in Pennsylvania.

White Cross appealed from an injunction issued in Allegheny County Common Pleas court preventing it from selling Squibb merchandise at less than manufacturer's trade prices.

Lawyers for Squibb said the high court ruling involves "a "constitutional question of such fundamental importance" and "will have such an economic impact upon a substantial segment of the retail industry" as to justify a reconsideration of the issues.

Thw 5-2 decision, written by Justice Michael J. Eagen, said the power to enforce such regulatory statutes may be given by the legislature to other state agencies, but not to private persons—the manufacturers.

Harrisburg Searches For Murderer

HARRISBURG (AP) — Police continued today to press for clues in the murder of Stewart J. Chandler, Harrisburg store keeper who was found shot to death Monday in his cut-rate facility.

"I gave out everything there was to release last night," declared police Chief C. Preston Price. "There is nothing further ready for publication — nothing new."

Dr. Thomas J. Fritchey, Dauphin County coroner, said an autopsy showed that Chandler, 56, "apparently was shot five times."

He said "two bullets entered the left side under the arm and three entered th back." Death was attributed to "massive hemorrhage."

Chandler's body was found by a lone customer, Edward A. Stambaugh, 45, who had stopped about 9:30 p.m. to purchase a pack of cigarettes.

The shooting immediately brought to memory the unsolved slayings of three other Harrisburg store operators last year. Police said it was still too early to link this killing with the others, which were isolated from each other in their location.

Rewards totaling $2,400 still are standing for information about the first three shootings.

Chandler who also worked as an inspector for the Pennsylvania Railroad, had opened his store at 13th and State Streets only three weeks ago. It is located near the Memorial Bridge which leads to the state Capitol.

Hectic World In Short

By FRANK PERRETTA

Sen. Scott must believe that greeting someone for the first time is a memorable occasion.

So he tries to do the best he can with his greetings.

Monday the senate greeted a delegation from Argentine House of Deputies.

Sen. Scott was speaking on the civil rights bill but took time out to welcome the deputies in Spanish.

Six angry adventurers burned their Viking vessels off the Tunisian coast this week ending an unhappy effort to reach America.

Robert Marx, skipper of the ship, a copy of ancient Viking vessels said he decided to burn the vessel rather than turn it over to Tunisian authorities.

When the ship began to leak and wobble, the five-man crew, pulled into Bizerte. When they were unsuccessful in selling the ship and were told to turn it over to the Tunisian merchant marine, the crew burned the boat.

They were trying to reach America in the Viking vessel to prove that the Vikings sailed across the Atlantic before Columbus.

Can you imagine? An invisible line at the bottom of a lake in Germany divides free Germany from the Red sector.

This week two fishermen were made acutely aware of the boundary line. They strayed across the line in their motorboat only to find that Red border guards had opened fire on them. Fortunately the fishermen weren't hit.

Gov. Scranton, in the public eye now more than ever, receives compliments every day.

He obviously has admirers in both parties.

But reporters were taken back this week when former Philadelphia mayor Richardson Dilworth said this of Mr. Scranton:

"He is one of the ablest politicians the state ever had."

This quote comes from the governor's opponent in the gubernatorial race.

But the Democrat quickly added to his quote:

"Scranton's biggest drawback is his failure to push for better education."

Married life got off to a weird start for Robin and Gillian Pactat. They left last weekend on a cargo ship for a honeymoon in the Canary Islands, along with a load of tomatoes.

Trouble is, as they found out too late, the vessel has only single cabins and Robin 23 and Gillian have one apiece — at opposite ends of the ship.

Scranton Returns To Harrisburg

NEW YORK (UPI) — A heavy fog in the New York area Tuesday forced Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania to travel to Harrisburg by car after arriving in New York by plane from a Florida vacation.

Scranton, tanned from 10 days in the Florida sun, arrived at Kennedy International Airport from West Palm Beach and had planned to board a state owned aircraft for the trip to Harrisburg. But Scranton, his wife and three of their children were forced to leave by auto.

Scranton declined to discuss the Republican presidential nomination contest.

Roger Blough To Speak At Hawley

HAWLEY — Dr. Richard Porter, president of the Wallenpaupack Joint Junior and Senior High School District at Hawley announced that Roger M. Blough, president of U. S. Steel Co., will speak at the dedication of the new school, May 24 at 2:30 p.m.

Blough was a former principal, teacher and coach at the Hawley High School which is a part of the jointure.

The $3.2 million school has been occupied since Feb. 5, 1964. Nearly 4,000 persons toured the new school in a two-day open house program recently.

At a meeting last night plan "C" was recommended for adoption to the Wayne County School Board by the Wallenpaupack Joint School Board.

Plan "C" calls for a three district orginization, including Wallenpaupack, Western Wayne and the Honesdale Union School District, plus the five uncommitted districts.

Also, considered were plan "A" which would make Wayne County a one administrative unit, and plan "B" which would have combined Western Wayne and Wallenpaupack.

Bids were open for financing the $140,000 conversion of the Hawley High School to an elementary school and demolition of the present elementary school.

The apparent low bidder was the First National Bank of Milford which offered a 3.2 per cent interest rate. Five other local banks offered bids ranging from 3.2 to 4.5 per cent.

Also, two teachers were hired. Philip Donatelli of Roselo, graduate of East Stroudsburg State College in the science Department, and Miss Joyce Bosman also of East Stroudsburg State College.

Meter Exec Says Payoffs Common

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A parking meter company official said Monday the business he's in is notorious for payoffs and kickbacks in winning contracts.

But, said Walter Hughes, general manager of Karpark Corp., of Starkville, Miss., it has been the policy of "our board of directors that we have a signed agreement with a legal sales representative" to whom commissions are paid for parking meter sales.

Hughes testified at the start of the second week of the extortion trial of former mayor John C. Kubacki of Reading, Pa., and Abraham Minker, also of Reading, in U.S. District Court here. Minker, now serving a four-year prison sentence for failure to pay gambling excise taxes, and Kubacki, are accused of extorting $10,500 and an $880 hall clock from two parking meter firms doing business with the city if Reading.

19 Involved In Non Support

20 Court Cases Presented

STROUDSBURG — Alfred A. Gower of Brodheadsville pleaded guilty to driving a car while his license was under suspension yesterday before President Judge Fred W. Davis in Monroe County Court.

The Gower case was one of 20 presented to Judge Davis by James R. Marsh. Monroe County district attorney.

The Brodheadsville man was placed on six months probation and ordered to pay a $200 fine and court costs.

The defendant in a support complaint, Carroll Veney of 10 S. Kistler St., East Stroudsburg, told the court if he and his wife, Marrietta, same address, can't get along "something is radically wrong and whatever you decide judge, I will go along with.'

Mrs. Veney claimed her husband had only given her $140 since July to support the couple's four children. Veney denied this and ticked off a number of things he paid with his last paycheck.

"We have no business being here," Veney chided. Judge Davis agreed and turned the case over to Martin Abel, adult probation officer, to seek a possible solution to the Veney's marital difficulties.

In other non-support cases:

Carl Counterman of Stroudsburg RD 3, was ordered to pay his wife, Alice of 8 N. Third St., Stroudsburg, $25 a week for the support of their two children. Counterman agreed to allow his employer to deduct the money from his pay.

George Kaiser Jr. of Milford was released from jail and ordered to pay $10 a week toward the support of his wife and six children. Kaiser will also pay $15 a week on $580 in back support payments.

"Leopard Changing Its Spots"

When Kaiser told Judge Davis he wanted to get out of jail and go to work, the judge said, "If you want to work it is almost like the leopard changing its spots."

Edward Singer of Stroudsburg, was ordered to pay $7.50 toward the support of his wife, Emily of 256 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg. Judge Davis warned Singer, "The next time you come before me you will land in jail."

Donald L. Wheelis of Cresco, was ordered to pay $20 a week for the support of his wife, Clara, and their five children in Milton, Fla. Wheelis said he also has two children in New Jersey and one in Cresco.

William Smith of 40 S. Kistler St., East Stroudsburg, the defendant in a complaint for support, filed by his wife, Jane, same address, was ordered to pay $50 in support. The couple has three children.

Pete Fish of 65 Penn St., East Stroudsburg, was told to pay $20 a week for the support of three children born out of wedlock or "go to jail." The payments will be made to Elizabeth G. Martin, probation officer, and turned over to Elizabeth Harper of Marshalls Creek, the mother of the three children.

Donald Boyd of 1066 Main St., Stroudsburg, will pay $15 a week to his wife, Barbara M. and son of Lansdowne, Pa.

George J. Rosenburg, 69, of Tobyhanna, contested a complaint for support filed by his wife, Clare, 65, of Philadelphia. Rosenburg claimed his wife left their home "because she wanted to."

"She left because of my physical condition and because I lost income when I was hospitalized," he said. The couple has been married for two years.

Rosenburg was defended by Atty. Detleff Hansen of Stroudsburg. Yesterday's testimony will be transcribed and sent to Philadelphia, where Mrs. Rosenburg will be given a chance to rebut it.

Judson Green of Cresco was ordered to pay $28 a week for the support of his wife. Daisy and their four children, who live at 473 Lincoln Ave. East Stroudsburg.

Richard Seese of Canadensis, contested a complaint for support initiated by his wife Kathleen of N. Arlington, N.J. Seese claimed his wife refused to return to Monroe County with him when he left New Jersey.

August R. Grant was ordered by the court to pay his wife, Evelyn, $15 a week for the support of the couple s one son.

$30 A Week

Ivan Adams of Portland was ordered to pay $30 a week and $60 in back payments for the support of his wife, Helen.

Roy R. Frey of Cresco, who is divorced from his wife Ruth I., was ordered to pay $15 a week toward the support of his 15-year-old son.

John Smeltz of Stroudsburg, was ordered to pay $25 a week for the support of his wife, Vivian and their two children. "Here we don't have enough money and it is our problem to parcel it out," Judge Davis told Smeltz.

Clyde W. Price Jr., who is employed at Camelback Ski Resort, was ordered to pay $25 a week to his wife and two children. The couple is divorced. Atty. Harry Lee of Stroudsburg represented Price.

Another Camelback worker, Armond Cameron, was told to pay $10 a week for the support of his wife and three children. Cameron was defended by Atty. Alex Bensinger of Stroudsburg.

Judge Davis ordered all defendants to pay court costs.

'Land Use Plan' Recommended For Zoning

Room For Development In Barrett Township

(This is the fourth of a series of articles on the Barrett Township Planning Commission, its master plan and subdivision ordinance).

By Jim Ottaway, Jr.
Daily Record Editor

MOUNTAINHOME—The master plan for future growth of Barrett Township recommends adoption of a zoning ordinance following the guidelines of its "land use plan."

There is still plenty of room for development in Barrett Township — 82 per cent of the land is vacant — but the Barrett Township Planning Commission found a number of problems of growth which require planning and control.

Main highways were found too narrow for present and future traffic, house construction is on a steep increase, and the rocky, shallow soil has created problems for future water supply, sewage and garbage and trash disposal.

Land Use Plan

To cope with these growing problems, the planning commission recommends in its master plan a plan and map dividing the township into six major areas of land use.

The topographical study of the township carried out by the commission's professional consultants revealed that only 16 per cent of the township, or 5,300 acres, is now developed.

And only 10 per cent of the remaining 27,075 vacant acres is unusable because it is too steep — having slopes of more than 20 per cent incline.

Residential Land

The suggested land use plan, which is the basis for the planning commission's present work on a proposed zoning ordinance for the township, provides for division of the township into residential, business, manufacturing, resort and public zones and land too steep for normal development.

The master plan allocates 4,500 acres for ultimate residential development, including streets, an increase of 3,280 acres over the 1,220 acres in residential use in 1961.

This land is mainly in the Cresco, Mountainhome, Canadensis, Seese Hill and Buck Hill Falls areas of present residential development, with another large area near Skytop, east of Krummel Hill Rd. (Rt. 390).

Population Density

Two population densities are proposed.

Areas which are served by sewer system at Buck Hill Falls and Skytop or may be served by a proposed public system in the populated areas of the township could have a maximum of three families per open acre.

Outlying areas, with no possibility of sewer service, could have a maximum of two families per open acre. In 1960 and 1961 there were about 1,533 houses on 1,220 acres — a very low density of 1.3 families per acre.

The master plan estimates that with an increase in township population from 2,395 in 1960 to 3,000 by 1970 and 3,800 by 1980 (permanent residents), this residential land will provide more than the space needed for housing development and will offer "a greater variety of site selection."

Business Land Use

Existing business and commercial activities occupy 92 acres in the township, with about 50 per cent of businesses related to tourist trade.

The land use plan sets aside 210 acres for business development with new land set aside for expanded shopping centers at the traffic light in Canadensis, west of Rt. 191 between Cresco and Mountainhome forks and east of Rt. 390 between Lewis Brothers Food Market and the Buck Hill forks.

"Adequate off - street parking facilities will have to be provided in order to attract shoppers and reduce traffic congestion in the business areas," the master plan warns.

The major traffic problem in Barrett is caused along Routes 191 and 390 from Cresco to the Buck Hill forks where many businesses have unlimited traffic access to the major highway with minimal parking space off the highway forcing shoppers to back out onto the highway.

Manufacturing Land Use

As Elmer Daniels, chairman of the planning commission, pointed out, even Barrett Township in the heart of the Pocono vacationland needs some industry.

"It produces steady incomes which we need here because of the seasonal work period of the resorts," he said.

The master plan suggests zoning of manufacturing plant land in the Erie - Lackawanna Railroad area of Cresco and around the existing J. A. Reinhardt Co. in Mountainhome. No acreage estimate is given. Such uses would be banned in any other parts of the township.

The master plan states:

"There is a tendency for small specialized industries, such as precision instrument manufacturing and pharmaceutical firms, to locate in relatively rural areas . . . Modern industry is attracted to well - planned industrial parks which are protected from residential and other types of incompatible development by modern zoning."

The master plan argues that residential, business and industrial areas all benefit when they are protected from each other by zoning regulation.

Resort Land Use

Nearly 2,000 acres, or 37 per cent of presently developed land, are used for resort purposes. This figure does not include vacant land owned by resorts.

The master plan states that the primary economic activity of Barrett Township is resort business, and it is carried on in almost all sections of the township.

The largest area is set aside for resort development, the bulk of it open land in the northeast corner of the township east of Skytop, north of Seese Hill residential areas, and around Brown's Lake, and between Canadensis and Skytop. No total acreage estimate is proposed.

Residential development on large sites would be allowed.

Public Land Use

Land is set aside for public facilities including the volunteer fire company building at Buck Hill Falls; the Barrett Elementary school and playground; the Little League field and Friendly Library in Mountainhome; the township highway shed and garbage dump in Cresco and the proposed recreation areas north and south of Canadensis on Rt. 290.

Special Purpose Land

This is too steep for development, but can carry transmission lines or be used for wildlife conservation.

Some people think it never needs service.

It's easy to get that impression.

How many other makes have been driven 60,000 miles with the original pistons and cylinders intact? How many ordinarily get 40,000 miles on the same tires?

That doesn't mean the Volkswagen never needs service. It does.

To get the most out of it, have your VW serviced regularly. We call it preventive maintenance. We'll give you a book on preventive maintenance for the first 30,000 miles you drive. And every 30,000 miles after that.

In the book for new VWs, for instance, coupons start you off with two free maintenance services. One at 300 miles. One at 3,000 miles. After that, the coupons remind you to bring your VW in for specified services at regular intervals. It's the best way to keep your VW in top shape.

Service is so important that Volkswagen won't sell cars where they can't be properly handled. By factory-trained mechanics, like ours.

Parts are economical and quickly installed.

There isn't a Volkswagen made that you can't get parts for easily. Most are interchangeable from year to year. (You can have a 1963 fender put on your '58 model with 10 bolts. It fits perfectly.)

We pride ourselves on this fact: Our service is as good as the car. Ask anybody.

The Lodge Surprise

Henry Cabot Lodge, U. S. Ambassador in South Viet Nam, may have to come home after all.

In two independent political polls this week, the Massachusetts Republican was reported first choice among Republican and independent voters for the Republican presidential nomination.

But one poll—that of George Gallup—also reported that Lodge is still unpopular with the political leaders of the Republican party who will do the selecting before the voters do the electing.

With surprising similarity, the Gallup Poll and the Louis Harris Poll, published in The Daily Record Monday, put Lodge in front of former Vice President Richard Nixon, 42 to 26 per cent and 41 to 28 per cent, respectively.

Goldwater and Rockefeller trail far behind, in that order, in the present opinion of Republican voters across the country.

It must be discouraging for Senator Barry Goldwater and Governor Nelson Rockefeller, the two declared candidates who are working and spending the hardest to win the GOP Nomination.

And it is discouraging for the election plans of the Republican party to have the voters taking such an "irrational" stand. Lodge is not beloved by the Republican party regulars. It is generally believed that "Dick Nixon can't win."

Governors George Romney and William Scranton continue to stand at the bottom of the heap in the political polls of opinion.

Goldwater and Rockefeller, shunned by New Hampshire voters, don't seem to be making any headway against President Johnson.

Opinions change and polls are not elections. But it is becoming more and more clear that the Republican party has not yet found its "Eisenhower" to defeat the Democratic party's "Truman" in the 1964 presidential election.

That Texas Clay Is Tough

Johnson A Reckless Driver?

Reports that President Johnson took a car-full of reporters for a speeding ride in Texas over Easter weekend started out as a harmless joke.

But the stiff-necked way in which President Johnson and George Reedy, his White House press secretary, have flatly denied the charge raises questions about the President's character as well as his speeding past the 70 mile per hour limit on a Texas road.

President Johnson, when asked at his informal Saturday news conference about speeding up to 80 and 85 miles per hour while he was driving, said with a straight face, "I am unaware that I have ever driven past 70."

That brought polite smiles in the White House, horse-laughs in Texas, and more stories from the reporters in the car. They said the President had taken off his hat and covered the speedometer so the reporters in the car could not see exactly how fast he was going.

George Reedy, when asked about the growing number of stories, said in a marvelous piece of foggy press-agentry, "Your question is assuming some conclusions based upon some facts of which I am not aware."

Translated into common English, understood by voters, this meant that George Reedy was not in the car at the time of the alleged speeding, could not therefore verify it, and could not get the President to say anything more about the incident.

Apparently there is something to hide. Why the President would tell such a big lie to cover up such a small sin is a political wonder.

The incident reveals an unpleasant characteristic of the man in the White House—as in the Bobby Baker case, he is so sensitive to criticism that he resorts to half-truths and untruths to cover up unpleasant stories.

Not unusual for a politician. But not an admirable trait for a President.

Comment Of The Day

"The United States is an imperialist country, but its government judges the world situation soberly.

"Some people have criticized me for praising this speech. (President John F. Kennedy's 'Strategy of Peace' speech at American University.) I think that President Johnson has views similar to his predecessor."

Reedy On The Job

By George Dixon

WASHINGTON — I can't imagine what's holding George Reedy back. He has been press secretary to President Lyndon B. Johnson for more than two weeks now and hasn't quit to run for the senate.

If Mr. Reedy doesn't get a move on soon he is apt to get the reputation of being slow. Such a reputation would be utterly unwarranted. Although the man mountain replacement for senate-seeking Pierre Salinger shuffles rather than walks, he shuffles fast.

True, he doesn't shuffle far. His office is 68 feet eight inches from the office formerly occupied by President Kennedy's Major Domo, Theodore C. Sorenson, but Mr. Reedy admits he doesn't know who is in Sorenson's old office now, if anybody.

Many feel that Mr. Reedy must cover more territory if he is to be a senatorial candidate. There is a persecuted minority, however, which holds that Mr. Reedy may have shuffled to the outlandish conclusion that being White House press secretary is not immutably a stepping stone to the senate.

There is a third group, completely outside the pale, which takes the stand that if the White House press secretaryship is to be a stepping stone to the senate, it should be abolished, and its occupant sent to keep former Brazilian President Joao Goulart company in exile.

This, it need hardly be said, is an extremist doctrine. Any man has the right to run for the senate, providing he has a few simple qualifications, such as how to make himself the choice of political leaders who wish he'd never been born, and being out of work.

Mr. Reedy may not be assisted to the latter qualification, as have, and will be, certain other White House familiars. But I would say that he has lots of senate stuff — lots and lots of stuff.

He has mastered the art of getting right down to the nub of things. He held a press conference in Austin, Texas, while the Johnsons were 60 miles away at their ranch, which should set a standard for nubbiness.

He began by giving out no news at great length. The correspondents began to grow desperate about what they could write for their overnight stories. The desperation led to this aquatic exchange:

Q. George, has the President been swimming lately?

A. I do not have a rundown on such activities as swimming, walking, riding, spotting deer. I leave all that to some of you who may be better informed than I am.

Q. Where would he go swimming?

A. There are a number of places where he could. There is the pool. There was a period, though I don't know whether they still use it, behind the dam of the Pedernales at one point. Out here, in this country, people frequently go swimming in what they call tanks, which are ponds out in the field. The word tanks probably puzzles non-Texans as much as it did me at first.

Q. (By a correspondent who's mind had wandered, and not come all the way back) Has he been swimming while he was here on this trip, George?

A. I am not certain. I have not inquired.

Q. Has he what?

A. Swimming since he has been on this trip, and my response was I have not inquired.

Q. Would you like to write our overnights?

There was no answer to this one, so the swimming story died in childbirth. Mr. Reedy demonstrated he was of senatorial timber, however, by scratching his head, and declaring there was one matter on which he could make a positive unequivocal answer — President Johnson definitely had been eating deer meat sausage at the ranch.

A man so frank and forthright as Mr. Reedy could hardly avoid being the peoples' choice for the most bifurcated debating body in the world.

There are idolators of the new White House press secretary who go even further.

They predict that Mr. Reedy not only would be the peoples' choice to depart the White House for the hustings, but that he could easily grow to be the choice of the President and the press.

Jobs Via Tourism

(Editor's Note: Robert L. Clark, managing editor of The Daily Record heard national and state officials and experts in the resort industry explore "The Billion Dollar Explosion in Tourism, Recreation and Parks" at a seminar in Harrisburg. Clark, one of 35 editors and publishers at the seminar, gives his views on the sessions).

Second In A Series

Where is the State Commerce Department going in "The Billion Dollar Explosion in Tourism, Recreation and Parks?"

Well one aim the state has is to use the tourist industry to cut the jobless rolls in Pennsylvania. John K. Tabor, Gov. Scranton's pride and joy in the Commerce Department, hopes to tap the wealth of unskilled labor to feed the economic health of the commonwealth.

Tabor is optimistic when he says, "Young and old unskilled workers can find work in the resort and tourist industry. He cited such jobs as ticket takers at drive-ins, handymen around resorts, guides at historic sites, bellhops, waiters, and waitresses, bus boys etc.

"Travel in all of its phases is considered a $30 billion industry in the United States," Tabor emphasized.

Pennsylvania's share of this 30 billion dollar business is destined to become bigger the next two years because of the New York World's Fair," he declared.

However, Tabor warned that other surrounding states are competing for this trade and thus, commonwealth tentacles have to be first with the mostest.

But it was pointed out that Pennsylvania's strategic location will force two-thirds of the anticipated 70 million people who will visit the World's Fair to travel through the Keystone State.

Tabor said, "Tourism is a two-way street. On the one hand, the dollars that tourists spend in Pennsylvania will help to provide new jobs and greater prosperity for our people; and on the other hand, those who visit us will benefit from experiencing our scenic beauty, historical heritage and great recreational facilities."

The Secretary of the Commerce Department revealed that the state is putting out a new 54-page color, "Guide to Pennsylvania" which is sponsored by the 100,000 Pennsylvanians for the Promotion of Economic Growth." It will appear in the May 16 edition of the Saturday Evening Post and hit a circulation of 1.6 million readers.

Tabor also reported the state will have 500,000 copies on hand to answer inquiries.

The comparatively young cabinet official spoke in depth on finding jobs for the unskilled in the tourist industry. "Automation has displaced the unskilled worker in the age groups of 16 to 25 and 45 to 60. We have to find a spot for them," he said.

"But it is not easy to put the unskilled to work. A strong back is not enough," Tabor pointed out.

Tabor noted that a couple traveling in the state spend on the average of $31 a day. He said if 25 couples visited the state, the 50 extra tourists would show an economic boost comparable to a plant with an annual payroll of $275,000.

Tabor smilingly remarked, "Money coming from out of state is all plus. There are no fringes; no demand on that money."

The Commerce Department's head cautioned that local, county and state officials must work together to meet the competition. "Too many conventions are going out of state. We must educate the surrounding territories that we have the facilities that are not staid and dull but have great assets."

Double - focus advertising was urged. Tabor used such terms as "a good place to live" and "good place to work" to promote the commonwealth. But, he declared, "shocking" byproducts — billboards — junkyards — must be improved to sell the merchandise — Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvania Story

Vague 'Ethnic' Vote

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — One of the most interesting—and perhaps indicative—transitions on the Pennsylvania scene in recent years has been the growing inability of old line political pros to count firmly anymore on the effectiveness at election time of the once great so-called "ethnic" vote.

In actuality, this decline is almost a natural; one to be expected in the melting pot era of the mid-twentieth century - but for the old political pros of yesteryear it is a difficult fact of political life to digest.

There are those of the more naive bent; the standard one-the-surface hopefuls who still like to dwell on the antiquated theory that the foreign language blocs are the potent force of an era long since all but vanished from the contemporary scene.

The Latvians, the Poles, the Irish, the Scandanavians, the Italians - and all the others who make up the so-called ethnic groups in the generation or two since their forebears first came to the shores of this country to settle in the coal and hard industry fields of Pennsylvania have shed a great degree of their old country tenacity for blind adherence as an ethnic group, to issues, to candidates.

Where once political strategists were able to play heavily on the group issue and line up their candidates accordingly in the Keystone State to poll the heavy "foreign element vote," this once fertile field in comparison has all but dried up.

The intense melting pot era — particularly since World War II — has diffused the ethnic lines of two or even one generation ago. The pragmatic era of simply "do as the boss sez" has gradually dissipated of its own free will producing an era of independence heretofore completely unknown on the ethnic front.

It is to the eternal credit of these ethnic groups that they have emerged from their restrictive cocoons; learned and insisted upon thinking for themselves as individuals — voting as they feel inclined to vote, for this or that candidate of his or her respective choice.

Tickets of candidates — such as statewide tickets are no longer made up with the great view of trying to appeal to these groups in the old heavy-handed sense. A look at the present tickets of statewide candidates of both parties in in Pennsylvania illustrates the point rather well.

The ethnic considerations no longer carry the great weight of former years, although routine effort is made to balance tickets for at least some sort of secondary consideration for all minority groups—race, religion, nationality, etc.—an obviously impossible task to the satisfaction of everyone.

The unitiated may see a name of an Irishman on the ticket and immediately conclude that here indeed is a potent appeal to the Irish— yet when you come right down to it, what candidate in this country (outside of the native Indians) won't have some derivation from a foreign land; an ethnic designation!

The vote potential of the various diversified groups is of course considered whenever a candidate slate is made up — but so is every other conceivable factor. Whereas the ethnic facet used to be considered one of the prime factors, today it has dwindled to one of the many "a" factors.

It is an important factor—but so are the other factors that go into the make up of any candidate selection!

Bearded political old pros today bemoan the loss of these once easily dominated groups as they watch their single-arm control in concert with the political machines of yesteryear fade from their grasp in favor of the more logical (but politically unwanted) diffused, independent electorate.

Times have changed as the old single-track ethnic groups of yesterday merge into contemporary America—and contemporary Pennsylvania.

"Well," admitted the trainer, "they have their little differences sometimes — but then we just buy a new donkey."

The Allen-Scott Report

Subtle Slip

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — The historic Senate struggle over the sweeping civil rights bill is taking a singular turn.

Whether by deliberate design or fortuitous coincidence, the protracted battle over civil rights is providing a very effective smoke - screen for a wily plan to slip President Johnson's controversial $3.4 billion foreign program through the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in piecemeal form.

The first effort to do that was stopped dead in its tracks. But the last has not been heard of this backstage scheme. It's still very much alive and kicking. There are significant indications it has high-level administration backing.

Two other dramatic aspects of this eventful foreign aid fray are:

The rival leaders are Senators J. William Fulbright, D.-Ark., die-hard foe of civil rights legislation who is going to exceptional lengths to win approval of the President's multi - billion dollar foreign aid proposal, and Wayne Morse, D.-Ore., veteran champion of civil rights who is militantly demanding drastic pruning of large - scale foreign aid spending, particularly military.

To "grease the skids" to ease the President's huge foreign aid authorization bill through the Foreign Relations Committee with a minimum of opposition and public attention, Fulbright has resorted to the ingenious strategem of splitting that legislation into eight separate measures (S. 2659 to S. 2666) covering the major provisions (titles) of the President's bill.

Fulbright's justification for this artful maneuver is that there is little or no opposition to some of these provisions and, therefore, they should be acted on separately. Otherwise, he contends, an across-the - board slash of the foreign aid budget, as Congress has voted the last several years, would adversely affect these generally approved titles.

The opposition emphatically disputes this, holding that foreign aid must be considered as a whole to prevent Congress from being lulled into voting piecemeal appropriations that in the end amount to what was originally contemplated.

Flagging 'em Down—Senator Fulbright's first move to slip several of his piecemeal bills through the Foreign Relations Committee occurred at an unpublicized closed - door meeting last week.

Only a few committeemen were present; Fulbright had a number of proxies in his pocket; and the stage appeared all set for his pulling off a neat coup.

But one of the few committeemen present was Senator Morse, and he balked.

With characteristic bluntness, the scrappy Oregonian not only derailed Fulbright's plan, but served notice he was going to do his utmost to block the whole piecemeal strategem.

When Fulbright suavely proposed voting on two of the least controversial piecemeal measures, indicating he had enough proxies for a majority, Morse instantly called a halt by quietly announcing, "Mr. Chairman, there will be no vote on these bills this morning."

"This executive session was called for that purpose," replied Fulbright. "All members of the committee have been polled, and the clerk has their proxies. Everything is proper and in order."

"I am quite sure of that," said Morse, "but that's not my point. My point is that as a member of this committee, I insist on further consideration of these bills. For one thing, I want to hear Secretary Rusk. I want him to come before this committee and discuss the whole question of foreign aid in full detail."

"Secretary Rusk has been here," contended Fulbright.

"But not while I was present," retorted Morse. "He wasn't here when I was on hand, and there are many things I want to ask him about. I have many questions, Mr. Chairman, a great many questions that will take hours to consider and discuss. Before there is any voting on the foreign aid issue, I must insist that Secretary Rusk and other important witnesses be summoned for full consideration of what we are voting on."

And that ended that.

With the Senate about to begin the daily debate on civil rights, Fulbright had no alternative but to bow to Morse. Fulbright had the proxies, but Morse had the rules in his favor and he won the round.

It was a TKO, but it stopped Fulbright.

Foreign Air Sparks — Outwardly, the White House has no direct connection with Fulbright's ingenious strategem of splitting the President's $3.4 billion foreign aid program into eight separate bills. But significantly, Foreign Aid Director David Bell is in close touch with Fulbright and confers frequently with him. Also, Bell is known to strongly favor Fulbright's plan.

Dear Abby

Father Knew Best

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Several days ago a letter came to our home addressed to a 15-year-old boy our daughter knows. It was sent in care of our daughter. My husband saw it and started to question her. He wanted to know what right the boy had to instruct someone to send him mail in her care. She said she didn't know anything about it, and didn't see where it was any of her father's business. I sided with my daughter. Her father allowed her to give the letter to the boy, but he instructed her to tell him that it was not to happen again. What is your opinion on this? We can't judge the boy as we hardly know him.

MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I think your husband was right. But he didn't go far enough. He should have asked his daughter to bring the boy around so he could become acquainted with him, gain his confidence and learn why the boy can't receive mail at home. Fifteen-year-olds need all the help and understanding they can get.

DEAR ABBY: Re the letter from the person asking what you thought about folks whose Christmas cards arrived after Christmas, I was pleased with your reply: "Better late than never. Who counts?"

Bravo, Abby! What has happened to the spirit of Christmas? I shall never forget a Christmas gift I once received. It was a bottle of home-made perfume that smelled strangely like vanilla extract. It was crudely wrapped in Christmas paper that had obviously been used on another gift, and tied with a second-hand red ribbon. But there was so much love in its manner of presentation I almost wept. It was from a ten-year-old girl whose family was on relief. How I cherished the thought!

A SCHOOL TEACHER'S MEMORY

DEAR ABBY: I want to get married. Should I ask the girl first, or should I ask her father? Some say I should ask the girl first, and if she says yes, I should then ask her father. It seems to me that I should ask the father first, because if he says no, it wouldn't make any sense to ask the girl. Will you kindly advise me? I thank you.

ABOUT TO

DEAR ABOUT: Ask the girl first. If she says no, you've had it, boy!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HER TEACHER": I want to write to the little blind girl who wrote me a sweet letter in Braille. Please send me her name and address.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Doctor, I'd Like To Know

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I am a professional musician in my late sixties. After several years of rest, I am resuming the practice of the piano. I work hard at it for two hours at a time at great speed. I find my finger joints aching occasionally. Is it safe to play the piano? Could it possibly bring out any arthritis that may be lying dormant?

Mrs. S. K. O'N.
Massachusetts

Dear Mrs. O'N.:

It is gratifying to hear of your musical interest and your devotion to the piano. Continued enthusiasm for any pursuit — music, painting, literature or whatever — in any age group sparks the inner psychological security and peace so important to personal happiness.

Possible Cause

The aching of your finger joints may be caused by too rigorous piano exercises after a prolonged period of inactivity. The muscles of the hands must slowly be retrained for exercise, as would the legs of a tennis player after a winter of idleness.

Playing the piano as actively as you do will not necessarily induce or activate an arthritic condition. It would be wise, however, for you to be examined clinically and perhaps by X-ray to determine if any arthritis is present.

At your age, there probably will be found some unimportant structural changes of the joints. These should not be considered unusual. Nor should they deprive you of the joys you apparently reap from your special accomplishment.

There is much benefit to be attained from the assurance of your physician about your general health and the condition of your talented fingers. Arthur Rubenstein, at 75, has just completed an arduous Beethoven cycle that would do justice to men and women half his age.

Forced Retirement

I have read with interest your column on the great accomplishments of science and medicine that give longer life to people today. I am one of those now living longer because of them. However, I do not appreciate my longer life because I have been retired from work and now must be supported by my children or "go on relief."

Can't arrangements be made for people who want to be active to enjoy the extra years by working rather than playing?

Mr. L. L. B., Ohio

Dear Mr. B.: You have asked an astute question and also answered it as well as anyone.

One of the great problems of today's society is to match our social growth with our medical advancement.

At A Fixed Age

Forced retirement at a fixed age deprives healthy people like you of the chance to continue to work in jobs that have brought much satisfaction. Forced leisure is not a substitute for gainful activity.

Time really nangs heavily when people are deprived of the jobs that have brought them dignity and compensation.

Markin Time

In every newspaper we see
Where news of crime has been inserted,
And yet how dull this world would be
If every crook should be converted.

Stories Behind Words

by William S. Penfield

Swan Song

There was a popular belief that swans burst into beautiful song just before death. This belief has been traced to ancient times.

Swans were held sacred to Apollo, the Greek god of music, and one Greek legend claimed that the soul of Apollo was passed into a swan.

A later legend, probably based on the earlier one, held that the souls of all great poets pass into swans.

These legends were the basis for the figurative expression, "swan song," applied at first to the last work of a poet or musician, or the last performance of a singer. Later its meaning was broadened to include any final or farewell work or performance.

'Scranton For President' Drive Slated In County

STROUDSBURG A local "Scranton For President" office will open in Monroe County "within a week or 10 days," Harold Kresge, Monroe County Republican chairman said yesterday.

Kresge also announced the appointment of Stroudsburg Attorney Philip Williams as chairman of the Monroe County Scranton for President Club.

As president of the local club, Williams will be on the executive committee of the Scranton for President Club of Pennsylvania.

Nancy Shukaitis will be the secretary of the local club, and will work with Williams in publicity for the movement.

"Due to the flood of calls and telegrams from all 50 states," Kresge said, "it appears people are really sincere in asking for Scranton for president.

"This is the time to organize such a movement and get the governor to make a decision to get into the race," Kresge said.

Williams said, "It's an honor for me to accept this appointment by Harold Kresge, and I will be pleased to work with James E. Staudinger, state chairman of the club and Montgomery GOP chairman."

Williams mentioned a quote by Staudinger which said, "A draft must be encouraged — it doesn't just happen."

With Staudinger on the state committee is Rep. Richard Schweiker.

Williams said that he had served on the Monroe County Direct Action Committee during the 1962 gubernatorial campaign.

"I will call upon the volunteer workers who assisted me on the action committee; I will also call upon other volunteers to organize the local Scranton for President Club," Williams added.

In addition to his work with the law firm of Bensinger and Bensinger, Williams is currently special assistant to the state attorney general.

Just Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

There are times when I think a newspaper office can be the most hectic place in the world but after looking over the baby's named, I'll concede honors for last Friday to the maternity ward at the General Hospital, where at least eight babies made their debut.

The social desk might come in second in a decibel rating but I'll bet I've got at least that many special events coming up, all of them crying for the attention of the public.

In one respect the AAUW is lucky—they've got a sort of built-in back-drop of emergency programs. When the speaker called from New York with the virus and larangitis, they drafted the husbands of two of their members and come up with a program which might well be the best of the year in any group.

Mary Jane Wolbers revealed that she adds a talent for flower arranging to her talent for contemporary dance in coming up with tiny Spring bonnets to tuck in with the tulips and to sit on the tea table on miniature hat stands. One full-scale hat with an open crown made a perfect base for a plate of lady fingers.

People, have you noticed, are apt to take you at your own evaluation, if you make it low enough. At any rate the hostess committee took my modest disclosure of any fame as a chef so seriously that they hesitated to let me even make sandwiches. However, so far I've heard no reports of tomaine.

One person who is ill is being cheered by the remembrances of his friends. Hinky Hughes, still in the Veterans Hospital, has received more than 100 cards.

Route Through Recipe Easy Compared To New Highways

By Linda Pipher
Daily Record Home Economist

Stroudsburg—Gone are the days when you can reply to a stranger's request for directions, "Turn right at the red light, go one block and turn left." If you have been befuddled before telling a tourist how to get to Bushkill or Mount Pocono or Delaware Water Gap, wait until this summer!

Bill and I spent Sunday afternoon going back and forth from our house to Tannersville while I tried to understand how you can cross from Interstate #80 to the road which goes by our house that goes to Wind Gap that I don't know the number of but it must be the new #209.

How Bill and I ever drove to California and back without killing each other is a mystery. Sunday when he threatened to dump me in the woods because I couldn't understand the intricate system of highways that even make the Poconos look foreign to me, I huffily told him I'd wait and get a map instead of asking him.

I should have Aunt Helen's sense of direction; nothing bothers her. She's on the go so much I never know where she is but was really surprised to get a postcard from her this week as I didn't know she was out of town. She attended a conference in Delaware and spotted a postcard with a recipe on it and thought of me.

The picture of the chicken looked scrumptious and it so happened that I had planned chicken for dinner that night and I had all the ingredients on hand, so I had to try it. This recipe is claimed by home economists to be one of the finest to ever win a prize in a National Chicken contest and it is delicious with a different flavor; I think it is even better cold and would certainly be ideal for picnic lunches this summer.

Chicken Americana

1 broiler-fryer about 2½ pounds, cut up
¼ pound (1 stick) butter or margarine, melted
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper, scant
¼ to ½ teaspoon garlic powder
½ cup herb-seasoned stuffing rolled fine (pkg. mix)
paprika
1 tablespoon snipped parsley

Preheat oven to 350. Arrange chicken pieces, one layer deep and skin side up, a a shallow baking dish (11½x7x1½ inches) close together so the pieces touch. Pour the melted butter or margarine over chicken. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and garlic powder; then, with stuffing crumbs. Finally, sprinkle with paprika. Bake uncovered in moderate oven until forktender about 1¼ to 1½ hours. Sprinkle parsley over chicken before serving. Makes 4 servings.

To complete your meal, bake potatoes along with the chicken and the last fifteen minutes, put this casserole in the oven. The recipe comes from Mrs. Fran Barthold and I got it via Mary Taylor of Evans the Florist. A few days before Easter I was in her shop buying plants and she told me about this recipe she had just copied. It looked so good that I made it for Easter dinner (for those who were willing to try a new recipe). I also fixed plain carrots as I knew the sour cream would not appeal to the childen. We adults liked it very much and before I told them what was in it, they thought they were eating broccoli. The unusual amount of parsley gives the beans this flavor.

Fran's Yugoslav Beans

2 packages frozen beans, cooked
¼ cup margarine or butter
2 tablespoons bread crumbs
½ bunch parsley, chopped fine
garlic powder
1 cup sour cream

Brown bread crumbs in butter and add to cooked green beans and chopped parsley. Sprinkle with garlic powder. Pour into a casserole and spread top with sour cream. Bake in a 350 oven for 15 minutes.

I tried chopping the parsley with a food chopper (which I'm afraid is dull) and then found it was faster to whiz parsley in blender.

You can make this meal an international one by having Swedish Pie for dessert. As this can bake right along with the chicken, it will also be economical, too. Bake it either the first half hour or the middle half hour for it should be eaten warm (not hot). The ingredients are the same as Mrs. Fellencer's Chipmunk pie which was published last Fall and so many of you liked. So if you missed that recipe, be sure and try this one, for whatever you call it, it's a good dessert. This comes from my neighbor, Mrs. Ruth Schmeiding, who brought it along with her from Toledo, Ohio.

Ruth's Swedish Pie

½ cup all purpose flour
¾ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 egg
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped raw apple
½ cup walnuts, chopped

Beat egg well. Add dry ingredients sifted together, and blend. Add vanilla, and chopped apple. Mix well. Fold in nuts. Turn batter into greased pie pan and bake at 350 for 30 minutes. Serve slightly warm.

Profs Ponder How To Keep Climate Of Cyprus Healthy

Stroudsburg — The island of Cyprus has one of the lowest death rates in the world—unless they step up the rate of killing each other off and in the process bring the larger powers into direct conflict.

Harold F. Creveling and Dr. Kurt Wimer discussed the problems in Cyprus and some suggested solutions at the meeting of the American Assn. of University Women on Monday night, when an eleventh-hour illness of the scheduled speaker called them in to fill the gap.

Prof. Creveling head of the Geography Department at East Stroudsburg State College, using maps and charts outlined the physical characteristics of the island whose valuable asset, he pointed out, is its strategic location in the Mediterranean, and its climate.

A largely mountainous country, Cyprus whose history dates back 3,000 BC badly needs soil conservation, he said. Still moderately fertile, it has suffered from deforestation and the ever-present goat, he said.

The British helped to develop the country and its naval base provided for much of its people. The population is four-fifths Greek and one fifth Turkish, Dr. Creveling said. It's birth rate is high and its death rate is one of the lowest in the world.

Underemployment is one of its major problems, but in contrast with many other peoples of the Near East, its people will stay with a factory job.

Since 1950, soil conservation methods have started to pay off, he said, although, with half of the people engaged in agriculture, the island is still not able to supply its own food needs. Citrus, grapes and olives are growing in yields.

It is a country of many small farms, rather than big landlords, he said, pointing out that the largest landowner is the Greek Church which owns 10 per cent of the land. Cyprus enjoys a higher standard of living than most of the surrounding countries, including Greece, he said.

Cooperatives for marketing crops have worked well, he said, and the economy has made impressive gains since 1950. The only industry likely to have an immediate growth is the tourist industry, he said.

Sketching in its historical background, he cited the advent of the Venetian traders, Greeks, Romans, Byzantine, Crusaders and Turks and finally the British from 1878 until they achieved independence in 1960.

Rising Nationalism

Dr. Kurt Wimer took over the discussion of the causes of the present crisis.

"The Turks and Greeks lived together in peace on Cyprus for 300 years, and now suddenly they can't get along," he observed wryly.

Nationalism ran high during the struggle for independence with the Greeks seeking closer union with Greece, the Turks seeking partition.

In the compromise "Treaty of Guarantee," England, Turkey and Greece were given the right to send in troops, to guarantee the Cyprus constitution. It is this right which President Makarios now seeks to abrogate, along with another treaty, giving the nations the right to maintain troops on Cyprus.

Part of the trouble, Wimer said, rests in the constitution itself which was modeled after that of Lebanon, which is also a bi-racial country. In Lebanon, however, about half are Christian and half Mohammedan, each with the right of veto. On Cyprus, one-fifth of the population can hamstring any action.

President Makarios has undoubtedly moved too fast in his demands, Wimer said, and as always in times of crisis the extremists act while the moderates withdraw.

Who Pays The Bill

At the present time, United Nations forces from five of the smaller nations are to serve as a restraining force, he pointed out, adding that the major question is who is to pay for these troops.

The United Nations itself is bankrupt, largely because of its action in the Congo, which in Dr. Wimer's opinion was a most successful operation in preventing a Communist takeover. However he estimated the U. N. overall indebtedness at $138.6 million. Russia, which is now in arrears for more than two years because of its refusal to contribute to the Congo expenses, will be a problem at the next session, Wimer pointed out.

There is now comparative calm on the island, he said, but the big problems are still to be solved. Among the suggested solutions, he listed, a guarantee of human rights giving the fearful Turkish population protection; a partition of the country with a separation of the two nationalities; the repatriation of the Turkish population.

"Our own example of federalism might be helpful," Wimer pointed out, where sectional differences could be allowed for.

Both Greece and Turkey have shown restraint in the crisis, he said, and the United States, who counts both Greece and Turkey as friends and allies, is trying to avoid taking sides, while Russia is seeking to capitalize on the unrest.

A question and answer period followed their presentation.

The planning and zoning commission received a sum of $500 for the next year which was half of the amount allotted last term. The donation to the Barrett Friendly Library was doubled to a total of $400.

The budget calls for $1,000 to be set aside for use in street-lighting. A like amount has been set up for the Park and Recreation Commission. The sum for the Pocono Mountains Airport Authority remains the same as last year, $1,100.

Non - governmental expenses include the repayment of the debt on the township shed on Sand Spring Road, Cresco at a rate of $2,800 each year. This is the third year for the mortgage. A loan of $4,000 borrowed to meet current expenses is included for repayment.

Included in the budget is the sum of $2,276.63 which comes from the state as Foreign Fire Insurance Tax. The board of supervisors receives the money from the state and passes it immediately into the Barrett Volunteer Fire Company fund, where it is added to the receipts realized from the one mill fire tax on real estate.

The fire budget is estimated to spend $7,500. The balance, $8,120.26 will be held in the account and includes $2,000 which is earmarked for the purchase of a new fire truck.

Of the $95,723.24 estimated receipts, $49,087.56 will come in from current and deliquent taxes and per capita assessments.

The remainder, $46,284.42, which is comparable to a three mill real estate tax, comes into the township through $21,284 in state and federal agencies, a $25,000 temporary loans and interest on a $10,000 treasury bill.

The regular meeting of the board will be held Thursday in the Barrett Elementary Center at 8 p.m.

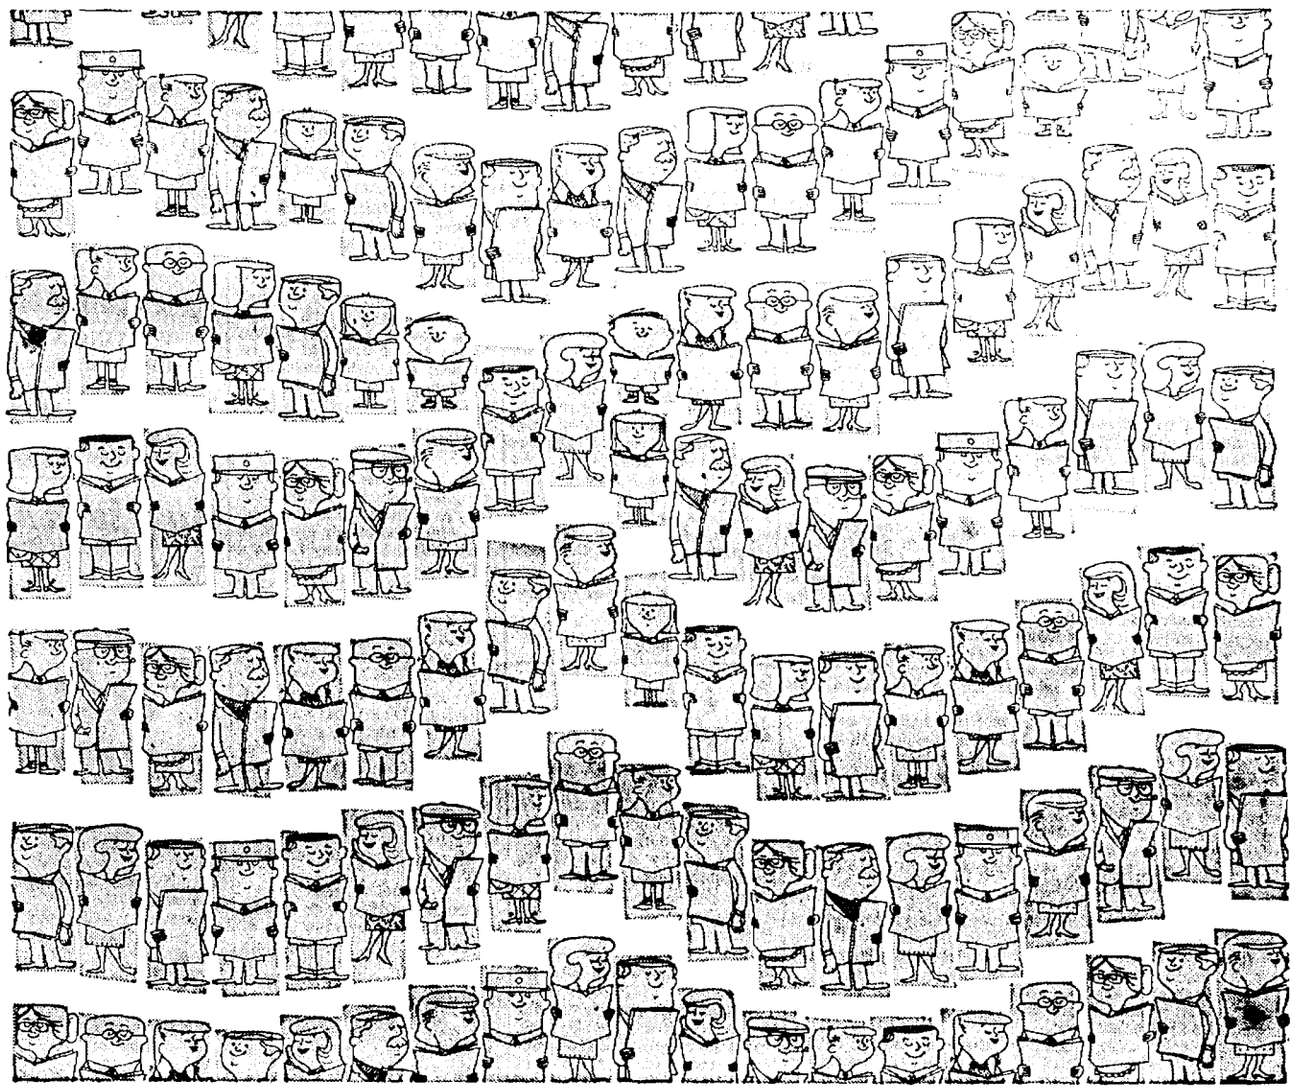
THE NEWSPAPER . . .
ALL THINGS TO ALL MEN . .
AND BY ALL TAKEN FOR GRANTED!



PICTURE YOUR TOWN WITHOUT A NEWSPAPER!

Downright compulsive, isn't it, this consuming curiosity about what's going on around town?

No, you're not nosey — Just curious. You believe that most of your public servants are honest . . . that your police and courts are free from corruption . . . that the politicians aren't plotting to steal the city hall.

And then you try to picture your town without a newspaper!

Dimly, you recall something that Thomas Jefferson once said: "Were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter."

Nonsense! That was long ago. It's different now. This is the electronic age. What with split atoms, split stocks and split second jet-way-of living, we now have all sorts of checker-uppers on our civic goings-on.

But have we? Let's take inventory.

Whatever wonders and wizardries communication offers today, one thing remains the same: the heart of the free press is still the good reporter. And the good newspaper —tis printed words documenting human happenings — is still the initial instrument in the protection of rights and liberties throughout the land.

The fact is plain. And it's reiterated in the records: Almost every day some American newspaper — ranging in size from the mighty metropolitan daily to the small town weekly — is acclaimed for its constructive efforts in helping to build a better community . . . or for its vigilance in searching out and snuffing out corruption, tyranny and injustice.

In this service, traditionally — yes, and inimitably — the newspaper is still supreme.

So, if you will, keep on taking your free press for granted. But — if you value your freedom — don't let anything or anybody take your newspaper away from you.

The Daily Record

SportScope

by KEN O'BRIEN

Daily Record Sports Editor

If Somerset Maugham had been a sportswriter, his novel, "Rain," probably would have been condensed into a column on a sports page. Particularly if he had been a working journalist in the Poconos during baseball season.

Officially, baseball opened last week in the Pocono-Slate Belt area.

Pen Argyl was scheduled to open first last Friday. Rain. Then it was East Stroudsburg State College's chance to gain the privilege of officially opening the diamond season. Rain again. Yesterday, Stroud Union was set for its inaugural against Pen Argyl. More rain. And Pocono Mountain is still waiting for its first outside drill!

This is typical of spring sports in this area. Last year was what you would call a "lucky" season. It didn't rain much—at least not when games were scheduled.

"We're not so lucky this year," said Sam O. Wells III, Stroud Union athletic director, yesterday. And the day before that, the coach of ESSC, Dr. George Ockershausen, exclaimed: "This doesn't seem to be our year."

But it is, really, "our year." This is the season here for rain and postponements. It is not an area suited for spring baseball.

The schools and colleges really have it tough in this area when it comes to outdoor sports in the spring.

The most fortunate of baseball participants around these parts are the players of the Pocono Mountain Baseball League.

But they, too, tread on thin ice—if not on muddy grounds. John Wernett, the league secretary, told this reporter last year: "It doesn't rain on Sunday for us. We always get our games in."

The PMBL doesn't open its season until April 26. This is a safer opening. The spring rains are usually finished by then. But it still can rain as easily on Sundays as on any other day of the week. Or in any month.

The fact remains the PMBL doesn't ALWAYS get its games in. Sometimes it does rain.

But at least no one can say about the hardy athletes of the Poconos during springtime that: "Everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it."

We do something about it here, at least. We postpone ball games.

New state and Interstate highways crossing Pennsylvania are slated to cut through State Game Lands in seven counties. To compensate for this land use the Pennsylvania Dept. of Highways and the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads has paid the Pennsylvania Game Commission $33,993 for use of 357 acres and destruction of a Commission-owned dwelling.

Executive director of the game commission, M. J. Golden, says those possessions in Monroe, Cambria, Erie, Fulton, Carbon, Lawrence and Clearfield Counties, were condemned "by the right of Eminent Domain and that the commission is satisfied with the settlement."

He added, "We must face the fact that highway construction on lands paid for by sportsmen's dollars will increase as the demand for more highways is met."

Among the lands involved in the settlement is State Game Land No. 38 in Monroe.

Under the newly-created "Memorandum of Understanding" all plans for highway construction must be approved by state conservation agencies before bidding can begin. Both Game and Fish Commissions are now reviewing all plans for highway construction in the Commonwealth.

A total of 186 members of Saylors Lake Fishing Assn. endured the cold and windy weather last weekend to enjoy a record catch of trout topped by James Nordmark of Saylorsburg who caught a 21-inch, 5-pound 2-ounce Tiger trout.

Saturday's total catch was 533 trout, the smallest of which was 12 inches. There were 62 fisherman who caught their limit of six trout.

While some perch were caught, the blue gills, calicos, catfies and eels seemed to be in search of warmer water. At least they weren't cooperating.

The next stocking of trout will be Friday, April 17.

A manager-coach is being sought by the Barrett Babe Ruth League. Persons interested are urged to contact either Charles Siglin (595-2787) or Hal Kreck (595-7429).

Dodgers, Yankees To Meet Again In Series?

Pitching Is Key For NL Champs

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Because pitching has become a more dominant factor than ever before since the advent of the lively ball, the Los Angeles Dodgers are picked to become the first National League team to repeat as pennant winners since the Milwaukee Braves won in 1957-58.

It should be a struggle all the way. The Dodgers could find it more difficult than last year when they finished six games ahead of the runner-up St. Louis Cardinals.

The league is tougher. The race could develop into a dragout, rowdy, down-to-the-wire battle with six clubs in the donnybrook. The other five are St. Louis, San Francisco, Philadelphia, Milwaukee and Cincinnati. The only clubs which don't figure in the pennant picture are Pittsburgh, Chicago, Houston and New York.

Cards May Push

The Cardinals, with perhaps the deepest pitching staff in the league—not necessarily the best—plus the finest infield in baseball, should push the Dodgers to the limit. The Giants have the most powerful attack. The Phillies and Braves have solid front lines with the Phils boasting more positive pitching strength. Pitching is the Reds' forte, too.

The possible order of finish:

1. Los Angeles
2. St. Louis
3. San Francisco
4. Milwaukee
5. Philadelphia
6. Cincinnati
7. Pittsburgh
8. Chicago
9. Houston
10. New York

The Dodgers are not a great ball club, their four-game World Series sweep over the New York Yankees notwithstanding. They lack an important ingredient. They don't have the power of the Giants, Braves or even the Phillies. But they do have superb pitching and unparalleled speed. Another thing. They have a home park best suited for the special talents. Long drives get you nothing but big outs in spacious Chavez Ravine.

Can't Afford Injuries

What can hurt the Dodgers more than the hats of Willie Mays, Henry Aaron, Ken Boyer and Frank Robinson is a crippling injury to either of their four standout pitchers. Southpaws Sandy Koufax, Johnny Podres, Ron Perranoski the relief ace; and right-hander Don Drysdale notched 74 of the team's 99 victories. There's been no indication this spring that any of the Big Four has lost his touch.

The Cards are strong in every department but the outfield. They're bound to miss Stan Musial, who is no longer around to carry the club. Johnny Lewis, a left-handed hitting rookie, must come through in right field, Curt Flood and Charley James, neither a power hitter, round out the outfield. The Redbirds also need a second string catcher in support of Tim McCarver.

The infield of Bill White, Julian Javier, Dick Groat and Boyer is superb and the pitching is strong, experienced and well balanced. Bob Gibson, Ernie Broglio, Ray Washburn, Curt Simmons and Ray Sadecki are the starters. Roger Craig, Lew Burdette, Ron Taylor and Bobby Shantz form an enviable bullpen.

Giants Strong

Manager Alvin Dark thinks the 1964 Giants are the best of his reign. Could be. Any club with such standout hitters as Mays, Orlando Cepeda and Willie McCovey, and pitchers like Juan Marichal, Jack Sanford and Billy O'Dell, must be regarded as strong pennant contenders.

But Bob Shaw and Bob Hendley still must prove they are the answer to the Giants' pitching problem of last year. And the jury is still out on rookies Jim Hart and Jesus Alou, who have been installed as regulars at third base and right field, respectively.

The Braves will go as far as their young pitching will take them. The indestructible Warren Spahn is still a good bet to win 20. Thereafter Manager Bobby Bragan's hopes lie in the arms of such comparative newcomers as Bob Sadowski, Tony Cloninger, Dennis Lemaster and Hank Fischer. There's plenty of hitting on the club with newcomers Felipe Alou and Ed Bailey joining up with Aaron, Ed Mathews and Joe Torre.

Envy Of League

Phillies Manager Gene Mauch is pleased with his pitching, which is knee deep with starters and relievers. The staff of Jim Bunning, Art Mahaffey, Dennis Bennett, Chris Short, Ray Culp and Cal McLish as starters and Jack Baldschun, John Klippstein, Ryne Duren, Dallas Green and John Boozer in the bullpen could be the envy of the league.

Much of the Reds' hopes depend on the comeback of pitchers Joey Jay and Bob Purkey and outfielder Robinson. Jay has been impressive this spring. Purkey has not. Robinson is too good a hitter not to improve greatly on his .259 average of last year.

WAITING FOR OPENER — Co-captains Lou Pacchioli (left) and John Ferguson flank East Stroudsburg State College Coach George Ockershausen as team awaits 1964 baseball opener. Drills were restricted to gym once again by rain while Warriors are scheduled to open season (again) today at home against Bloomsburg. Original opener against Wilkes last Saturday was postponed. A Long Summer For Anti-Yanks

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It looks like another long hot summer for the legion of Yankee haters in the American League. After winning last year by 10½ games with Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris ailing, who can catch them this season?

Actually, there is a strong suspicion that the Yanks could be beaten if only a strong contender would shove his head above the pack. Detroit and Minnesota have the hitting. Chicago and Baltimore have the pitching. None adds up to a route-going challenger. Cleveland might be an outsider if everything breaks right, but the others are also rans.

The tipoff on the Yankees strength is the way they shift managers and key front office personnel but still keep on winning. The current streak of four straight pennants started under Casey Stengel and George Weiss, continued under Ralph Houk and Roy Hamey and probably will keep on going under Yogi Berra and Houk.

The Probable Finish

Here's the way it looks from here:

1. New York
2. Minnesota
3. Chicago
4. Detroit
5. Baltimore
6. Cleveland
7. Boston
8. Los Angeles
9. Kansas City
10. Washington

The Yanks are essentially the same club that won easily last year without Mantle and Maris in the line-up for long stretches. The most interesting test will be the ability of Berra to switch from catcher to manager and the success of Whitey Ford as a pitcher-coach.

Minnesota has the wallop with Harmon Killebrew, Bob Allison, Jimmie Hall and Earl Battey, but the defense is porous, a serious handicap to the thin front line of pitching composed of Camilo Pascual, Dick Stigman, Lee Stange and Jim Kaat. If the Twins are going to do it, they must simply overpower everybody in sight.

Not Impressive

Chicago does not impress at first look but a more thorough investigation of the roster discloses pitching depth in Gary Peters, Juan Pizarro, Ray Herbert and John Buzhardt. Al Lopez has a likely looking candidate for rookie-of-the-year in second baseman Don Buford and a long ball hitter in Dave Nicholson, but is concerned about Pete Ward's bad luck.

Detroit's front line is solid and its pitching could be strong enough if Frank Lary continues his comeback. At the point of a gun, the Tigers would be the pick here as the one team with the potential to win it all. However, too many things have to work out right for Chuck Dressen. The addition of Jerry Lumpe at second base should make the infield and Don Demeter will help in centerfield.

Accent On Pitching

Hank Bauer counts on Norm Siebern and Willie Kirkland to help the Baltimore attack, but the accent is on the pitching of Steve Barber, Robin Roberts, Milt Pappas, Chuck Estrada and Stu Miller.

Cleveland's chances of improving on their 1963 finish, when the Tribe tied for fifth with Detroit, depend on continued improvement by Max Alvis and Vic Davalillo, the newly added home run punch of Leon Wagner and more consistent pitching.

Royals Win 1st Game Over Celtics

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Royals, with their backs to th wall, broke a shooting slump Tuesday night and topped the Boston Celtics 102-93, extending their National Basketball Association Eastern Division playoff final into at least a fifth game.

Boston, aiming for its eighth straight division championship, won the first three games of the best-of-seven series and could have wrapped it up Tuesday night. The fifth game will be in Boston Thursday.

Oscar Robertson paced the Royals' attack with 33 points and was all over the floor in making assists and stealing the ball from the Celts.

The Royals' victory was a team effort. Jerry Lucas, Wayne Embry and Jack Twyman were outstanding.

The Celtics were ahead 49-46 at halftime but Robertson and Twyman pushed the Royals into a tie with 8:36 left in the third quarter. That was at 53-all.

Later, Robertson hit a foul shot and Tom Hawkins dumped in a lay-up and the Royals went in front 62-59 with 5:09 to go in the third period. The Royals never trailed from then on.

Cincinnati was ahead by eight points at one time in the third quarter but Boston narrowed it to 75-72 at the intermission.

The fourth quarter was nearly all Robertson and the Royals. Cincinnati led by 10 points with about six minutes left and from then on was ahead from six to eight points.

Robertson and Sam Jones took scoring honors with 33 points each. Twyman had 31 and Lucas 16 for the Royals. John Havlicek had 21 for Boston.

'Just Jack And Me'

Masters-Minded Palmer Relaxed

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — "I'd like to come up to the last round Sunday with Nicklaus and me 20 shots in front of the field," a relaxed and confident Arnold Palmer said Tuesday. "Just Jack and me."

Instead of being bugged by Nicklaus' massive, ever expanding shadow, golf's greatest money winner insisted that he found a challenge in the personal duel with the powerful young giant from Columbus, Ohio.

"It pumps me up," Palmer said.

These two modern giants of the fairways come to grips again Thursday in the 28th Masters Golf Tournament, co-favored in a strong international field of 90. Nicklaus, 24, is the defending champion. Palmer, is seeking his fourth Masters title in six years.

Friendly Practice

They squared off in a friendly practice preview Tuesday on the par 3 course prior to a tune-up over the 6,980-yard, Augusta National course, where the year's first major competition will be contested Thursday through Sunday.

The course was reopened shortly before noon after being closed 24 hours because of torrential rains. There was a stampede for the tee.

Prospects for favorable weather for the big spring golf spectacle were dim. The Weather Bureau forecast thundershowers throughout the day and night, continuing into Wednesday, with clearing and cooler weather for Thursday's opening.

It seemed impossible that the broad, rolling layout, saturated by monsoon-like rains, could be dried out properly for the weekend. This means an added advantage for the big hitters, such as Nicklaus and Palmer.

Inflamed Throat

Gary Player of South Africa, 1961 winner, turned up with an inflamed throat that may ruin his hopes, if not knock him out of the tournament.

Feverish, hoarse and pumped full of penicillin, Player went out on a practice round and insisted he would play. He said he planned to undergo an operation here Monday to have his tonsils removed.

Other favorites include National Open champion Julius Boros, fresh from a spectacular triumph at the Greensboro Open; Champagne Tony Lema, runner-up to Nicklaus last year; Sammy Snead, a threat at 51, and Bil Casper, perhaps the most formidable putter in the game.

Reds Defeat Phillies, 6-4

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati right-hander Jim Maloney, a 23-game winner in 1963, pitched eight innings and hit three singles Tuesday as the Reds defeated Philadelphia 6-4 for their fourth straight exhibition baseball victory.

Minnesota edged Washington 4-3 on Bob Allison's bases-loaded single with two out in the ninth inning. St. Louis, trailing Pittsburgh 2-0 after eight innings, rallied to tie the score in the ninth and pushed over an unearned run in the 10th for a 3-2 victory.

The Chicago White Sox defeated Baltimore 3-1 in a game enlivened by a running squabble between Chicago Manager Al Lopez and Umpire Ed Hurley. Harry Bright's two-run double in the seventh inning provided the winning margin as the New York Yankees nipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3.

The New York Mets, blanked for eight innings by Kansas City pitcher Diego Segui, erupted for five runs in the ninth against reliever Tom Sturdivant but still lost 8-5.

Glenn Hobbie pitched seven innings while the Chicago Cubs scored four unearned runs in the third and topped Boston 4-2.

The Los Angeles Angels snapped a tie in the eighth inning and shaded Cleveland 3-2.

Cite MacArthur

NEW YORK (AP)—The Metropolitan District of the Amateur Athletic Union voted Monday night to give its annual gold medal award to the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Leafs, Red Wings Even NHL Series

TORONTO (AP) — Johnny Bower, Toronto's ageless goalie, slammed the gates on Montreal Tuesday night and the Maple Leafs trimmed the Canadiens 3-0 to square their Stanley Cup semifinal series at three victories each.

Bower, listed as 39 but believed to be closer to 45, smothered 25 Montreal shots and Don McKenney, Bobby Raun and Andy Bathgate provided the scoring punch as the Leafs extended the best-of-seven set to the limit.

The decisive game will be played at Montreal Thursday night.

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Red Wings, fired up by a $500 fine levied on Coach Sid Abel just before game time, overpowered the Chicago Black Hawks 7-2 Tuesday night to square their Stanley Cup semifinal series at three games each.

The seventh and deciding game will be played at Chicago Thursday night.

National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell levied the fine because of Abel's comments following a disputed goal in the 3-2 game which Detroit lost at Chicago Sunday night. The action was announced just before the teams took the ice.

Clay-Liston On Television

NEW YORK (AP) Films of the controversial Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston heavyweight championship fight, previously shown only on closed circuit television, will be televised Saturday on the ABC Wide World of Sports program.

Roone Arledge, ABC vice president for sports, said Tuesday the films will be shown from 5 to 6:30 p.m. EST.

No Retrial For Curtis

ATLANTA (AP)—A federal judge refused Tuesday to grant a new trial in Wally Butts' libel suit against Curtis Publishing Co. in still another legal round in the lengthy dispute arising from football-fix charges.

U.S. District Judge Lewis R. Morgan ruled that new evidence described by Curtis in its retrial motion "would not have changed the verdict in this case."

Butts, former athletic director at the University of Georgia, won a jury verdict of $3.06 million last August as a result of an article in the Curtis-owned Saturday Evening Post a year ago. The article charged that Butts fed pre-game football data on his team to Alabama's coach, Paul Bryant. Butts later settled for $460,000.

Charlie (Oh!) Finley No Loser

LOS ANGELES—It was, unmistakably, a week for losers. A crook running from police threw a punch at a stranger who turned out to be Sugar Ray Robinson. Sugar Ray has slipped, but not that far. The cops soon had their fugitive, albeit a little cold.

In Las Vegas, crapshooters in one establishment received the distressing news that the dice were slightly unsymmetrical. They weren't as philosophical as a horse player upon learning that the winner was drugged. At least, he says to himself, he is comforted in the loss by the fact that there was no breakdown in his handicapping.

And, finally, George Jessel confided on television last week that he was the one who had opened a restaurant next to the Studebaker plant in South Bend.

In the wake of these developments, it was hardly surprising that a distinguished loser like Charlie Finley should pop into the news with an announcement that he was going to arrange a Yankee Stadium in Kansas City.

Eden In Bronx

Mr. Finley reasons plausibly that if the Yanks, inhabiting their little Eden in the Bronx, can win the pennant 13 times in 15 years, there must be something about their park mysteriously conducive to such a record.

Charlie concludes that it is the right field fence, measuring 296 feet from home at the foul line, with a modest fall-a-way toward center.

Playing to lefthanded power, New York is able to pop the ball easily into the seats. Actually, opponents can, too, as the Yankees discovered when John Roseboro came to bat with the bases loaded last October.

But since the Yanks appear in their stadium 81 times a year and their colleagues only nine times each, Charlie Finley can see a discrepency immediately, because he is nobody's sap.

Therefore, he is proposing what he calls a "Pennant Porch" for Municipal Stadium in Kansas City in which he plans to simulate the measurements of right field of Yankee Stadium.

Equal Basis

With this change, Charlie says assuredly that he will, for the first time, be able to compete against New York on an equal basis.

In the twinkling of an eye, he will have neutralized Mantle, Maris, Howard, Tresh, Ford, Bouton, Terry, Downing, Pepitone and Kubek.

Playing in a park last year whose right field fence measured 338 feet from home, the Athletics, understandably, blew the race. They finished eighth, 30½ games off the lead, which was an improvement over the year before.

With Charlie's Pennant Porch, however, they can be figured to rock around the clock.

Up to now, Finley has enjoyed but modest success with his plans and innovations. For instance, the reception was only lukewarm when he suggested the team start playing with an orange ball, instead of a white one.

Nor did enthusiasm run rampant when he recommended that three of the World Series games be played at night.

Grazing sheep somehow never struck the fancy of other owners, who couldn't even picture the countless advantages of Louisville as an American League town.

But when Finley come up with an idea to do in the Yankees, he may, at last, be playing to an appreciative audience.

Certainly, the Angels and Senators would go along with the Athletics in the building of Pennant Porches, which would mean that the Yankees not only would smash home runs at home, but on the road, too.

Mother's Day Flag

Bucking longer distance in right field on the road, the Yanks won the pennant last year by 10½ games. With fences moved in everywhere, they could wrap it up by Mother's Day.

We are browsing through a UPI report on the Athletics and noted the terse observation, "The pitching lacks depth and the outfield defense is only mediocre."

We then examined the records of the top six pitchers on the Kansas City staff and found that they won but 40 games among them last year.

The top six pitchers for New York won a total of 88 games. Instantly, you can see why a Pennant Porch might be safer for the Yankees than for Kansas City.

But Charlie Finley is not to be minimized. He will bring the Yanks to their knees yet.

THE DEPENDABLES: SUCCESS CARS OF '64

We have designs to get you in our power

Our engineers are a wily group of guys who spend most of their time dreaming up ways to win your approval. Take the Dodge Polara 500.

You'd be hard-pressed to find a car that's got more going for you. Deeply-padded, contour-formed bucket seats. All-vinyl upholstery. Sill-to-sill carpeting. Padded dash. Center console. And lots of other trimmings. But that's only the half of it.

Perhaps our approach to power will further illustrate the point. With the Polara 500 you aren't baked in on a certain engine. You can choose from a standard 318 cu. in. V8 up to a street-version of our walloping, all-out 426 cu. in. Ramcharger V8. Compromise? Nope. We just feel that a freedom of choice is the surest road to your approval.

That's our way of doing business—giving you lots of car and lots of satisfaction at a price that's hard to quarrel with.

Your Dodge Dealer will be glad to demonstrate the point.

Cy Barrett Says

Auctioneer's Title

By Cyrus Barrett, Jr.

DEAR CY:

Is it true, by becoming an auctioneer, I can get the honorary title of "Colonel" and a $100 daily guarantee for 8 hours' work? Having been a good talker all my life, this appeals to me. Would you suggest I take a correspondence course in auctioneering? Several schools look good to me. P.S. Is this hard work?

REED VAN

DEAR REED:

Auctioneers don't sell every day, but when they do, $500 to $5,000 can be earned for 8 hours of shouting. (The $100 guarantee is customary.) Colonal Jack Stinson, president of the American Society of Auctioneers, loses five or more pounds when on the job and loves every minute of it. He takes a dim view of learning this profession by mail, saying "A special auctioneers' school should be attended."

Jack Stinson's honorary title of "Colonel" dates to pre-Civil war slave auctions. Auctioneers were a debauching bunch, with a taste for quick money and hard liquor. They would not hesitate to knock down a slave valued at $500 for 250, splitting commissions with the buyer. Kentucky colonels began conducting their own slave auctions for the sake of honesty . . .and saving the 5 per cent commission. (Cattle auctioneers receive 5 per cent today.)

As the profession grew in stature through ethics, experts assumed the Colonel title within the business. Colonel Stimson warns newcomers who think they can learn auctioneering by mail: "There are too many self - styled auctioneers, who, when the bidding stops, have no place to go."

CY

DEAR CY:

Suddenly, I find myself a widow with four children and a living to make. I've made up my mind to move to some college town and rent rooms to students. This is so I can be home with my children and stand a better chance of sending them through college. My youngsters are 6, 8, 10, 13 and are very helpful. Can you encourage me?

MRS. DREY

DEAR MRS. DREY:

Action requires courage but gives strength to life. Instead of mourning your family financial condition, you have the fortitude to select opportunity and move dynamically toward it. Get the facts from college or university offices and be guided statistically. With those four fine kids, I don't see how you can lose.

CY

DEAR CY:

Holding a job would be a cinch if the compaines I worked for didn't automate, disintegrate, or transplant. In the last five years, I have held four jobs as secretary. Each place gave me a good recommendation, but I can't count on what my income will be. Any suggestions?

DORIS BORRIS

DEAR DORIS:

Quit standing on a banana peel and learn a profitable hobby. Mrs. G. Leinmiller, who, with her husband, operates George's Hobby Shop in Lawrence, Kansas tells me, "A lot of girls fall back on their hobby for money between jobs, for income. Figurine painting is a favorite, although they usually underprice their work." Women can make a grand display of nerve in just about anything but pricing their abilities or services. If they would forget what they think is value, and set a nerve price, the world would be different. Maybe not better, but different.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Wednesday, April 8, 1964

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Close in on a good idea, enlist others' help to put it across. Under prevalent influences, you should win advancement, gain new benefits.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Even if hours are short and there is much to be accomplished, take time enough for efficient planning. A good day for revitalizing all interests.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Influences generally auspicious, but here and there are traps to ensnare those who are offguard. Be firm about going forward, but as diligent in detecting flaws.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Pressing too hard and lethargy are the two extreme which could hamper success now. Follow a sound middle-road policy and you can reap a fine harvest from your endeavors.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — The quality of your work may suffer if you speed up too much. And nerves will be frayed if you attempt too much. Be guided accordingly. Organize a schedule which you can follow without detriment to either work or health.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — You may tend to slow down at unexpected moments, then accelerate your pace inaccountably. Evenness is called for, and that usual dash of humor and good will to see you over the tricky spots.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Take your time, don't let anyone irk or mislead, and note where changes could prove beneficial. Keep things as uncomplicated as you can.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Someone in authority may seem harsh. Consider the situation carefully. Are you taking all factors into consideration? Are you viewing in the right perspective? You COULD be wrong.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Work for top gains but do not expect them immediately. Be concise in arrangements, stipulation, speech. Narrow the margin for errors.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — There's inspiration in nearby areas that you may be overlooking. Give as much care and thought to your domestic concerns as you do your business affairs if you would keep your sheet well balanced.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — You may have a tendency to procrastinate now. Avoid. And once started, see that you keep things going evenly. Sidestep excitement.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Your planetary influences are more favorable than those of today, yet you could overexpand, overreach and cause redoing, rearranging. Tighten up loose ends, maintain stability.

YOU BORN TODAY are both artistic and practical, broad minded, willing to give all a chance to hear for themselves. You may speak too quickly, or act abruptly at times and hurt yourself most in the process. A good mixer, you love to travel, meet people, entertain. Discovery of your talents and time will rise above the ordinary, assume for and reach high attainment, and help many along the way. Birthdate of: Albert I. Belgium king.

Portland Mayor Resigns

PORTLAND — Council accepted the resignation of Mayor William Starner at a meeting Monday night in the Portland town hall.

Starner's letter gave ill health and doctor's orders as reasons for resigning as the borough's mayor and Civil Defense director.

Council also named Ronald Newbaker as the new CD director in the borough. He replaces Starner.

Council was told that R. H. Odenheimer and Co. has started drilling a 10-inch well at the borough property. The well will be 500 feet more or less.

Herbert Hoagland, cashier at Portland First National Bank, requested the area in front of the bank be a no parking zone. Council approved the request.

Wallace Stine and William Golden were named by council to represent the borough at the Slate Belt Area Joint Planning April 16, in the Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton Airport in Allentown.

Council also approved the Woman's Club request for a clean up week in Portland. The club requested council to participate in the week, which will be announced later.

In closing action council named a three-man committee to survey the problem of swimming pools in the borough. The committeemen are William Golden, Neal Brodt and Ray Hamilton. They will make a report at the next meeting.

$200,000 Award Appealed

EASTON — The Pennsylvania Department of Highways has appealed a $200,000 land condemnation award in Wind Gap to the state Supreme Court.

The appeal was filed in Northampton County Court last week in a case involving Parson Brothers Slate Co. of Wind Gap.

The case concerns land damages allegedly caused by the state in construction of Route 115 in Wind Gap. The Parsons firm contends it was forced out of business when a strip of its land was used by the state.

Parsons Brothers, owned by Lyonal G. Parsons, H. Lucas Parsons and Stella P. Hill, was awarded $168,000 by a board of view.

The state appealed the award and a Northampton County jury awarded the land the sum of $200,000.

The first units are scheduled to arrive May 30, and the last company will complete its training on Aug. 22.

As in previous years, the depot's post engineers will erect a tent city to house the trainees.

OLD VIC
ON THE AVENIDA JUAREZ—SOLD OUT!

"To be or not to be . . ." "Ser o no ser . . ." Hamlet, translated into Spanish, was a recent standing-room-only success in Mexico City, as were plays by Molière and Tennessee Williams.

At various times, the Old Vic and U.S. Actors' Studio have played to packed houses.

And in the plazas of Guanajuato, classic Spanish dramas are presented during a yearly festival.

Original Mexican drama and musical comedies, sidewalk art exhibits, performances or the corps of ballet—Mexican cultural fare is as richly varied as the cuisine at its famous international restaurants.

In the many galleries filled with vital modern art . . . in a concert of the National Symphony at the Palace de Belles Artes . . . in the historic dances performed by the international award winning Ballet Folklorico Nacional . . . throughout Mexico are elements of the two great traditions which Mexicans have blended into their modern national culture – the learned Maya-Aztec and the European, strong with Renaissance spirit.

Knowledge of our modern neighbor is important today. Send for the free 16-page booklet, "Know Mexico," Box 1900, New York 19.

Presented in the interest of International goodwill through the cooperation of The Advertising Council, the Consejo Nacional de la Publicidad, and the Newspaper Advertising Executives Association.

Special Notices 8

DEAR SALLY:

You remember me bragging in practically all my letters home about the wonderful Drive-In we have here in Kutztown where we can get char-broiled hamburgers and steak sandwiches, golden fried shrimp-in-the-basket and honey-dipped chicken, crisp crinkle cut french fries and pierogies, those delicious little triangles filled with cheeses as well as tasty hougies and baked-in-sight pizza?

Well, I heard it said at the College yesterday that the Scouris', Mary and Evan, former owners of this place are opening The Big Star Drive-In at 1833 West Main St. in Stroudsburg and my room-mate who used to work part time for the Scouris, told me they said they would have the same menu there as *they had here with a few addi*tions.

Isn't that wonderful? You won't have to do any cooking when I come home weekends. We'll run out to the Big Star.

Love, SUE

Dog Owners Warned

BUSHKILL — Walter P. Bensley, dog law officer in this area yesterday said he will start prosecuting all persons harboring or owning unlicensed dogs

Bensley said the licenses are available at the county treasurer's office

He said the securing of a dog license does not give a dog owner the right to allow a dog to run at large and unattended at anytime.

Under the Pennsylvania Dog Laws the owner can be fined, or jailed or both for allowing his dog to run at large or unattended.

E-Burg Man Put On Parole

STROUDSBURG — Raymond C. Kresge, 20, of 396 Lincoln Ave., East Stroudsburg, was given parole yesterday by President Judge Fred W. Davis.

Kresge had been in the Monroe County Jail for the past 11 months after being found guilty of five counts of burglary and one count of larceny.

The young man was sentenced to 17 months May 17, 1963 by Judge Davis. He will remain on parole for six months. Kresge told the court yesterday if his request was granted he had immediate employment at an East Stroudsburg bakery.

Judge Davis ordered Kresge to pay a $400 fine and court costs in weekly installments of $22. He was represented by Atty. Walter Olenick, of Stroudsburg.

Cooperation Of All Urged In Curbing Forest Fires

STROUDSBURG — The district forester for the state Department of Forest and Waters yesterday listed four ways citizens can help in preventing forest fires during the dry spring season.

Gerald Robinson, forester or Monroe, Northampton and Pike counties, said each spring there is a number of forest fires caused by the "carelessness of individuals engaged in burning trash, brush in old fields."

He said the Department of Forest and Waters reminds everyone that the person responsible for causing a forest fire is also responsible for paying the cost of extinguishing that fire.

"Fire suppression is always costly, and there is the possibility that the fire would cause damage to another person's property. This could result in a civil suit for damages." Robinson said.

He said when burning must be done the following four precautions should be taken:

1. Clear all inflammable material from a large area around thrash burners, brush piles or fields to be burned. Use a covered burner to keep burning papers from blowing away.

2. Have tools and water on the job. Have enough help. Watch the fire until it is out.

3. Burning after 4 p.m. lessens the chance of a fire escaping because of the increasing dampness and a usual calming of winds.

4. Burn only when weather conditions make it safe; during or immediately following a rain. Consult The Daily Record weather report or listen to WVPO for the Daily Burning Index and burning advice.

The burning index is scaled from 0 to 200. Zero indicates low fire danger, 200 indicates high danger.

Burn only when the index is below 12. Do not burn at all when the index is above 35. Beyond 35 fires start easily, spread rapidly and are hard to put out, according to Robinson.

Robinson gave this warming if burning is necessary:

"If you are going to burn brush or old fields, please notify the nearest forest lookout tower or call the district office at 421-1082.

"This will prevent a false alarm call for a smokechaser team or local fire company. Should a fire escape from your burning call for help immediately. Small fires are less costley than large ones."

'Bigger, Better Bangor' Aim Of Councilman Riegel

By Jim Shafer
Daily Record Reporter

BANGOR — "I feel the biggest step forward Bangor has taken is the recent installation of its sewage system," Councilman Troy Riegel said yesterday.

Riegel, like many of the other councilmen, is a believer of the "Bigger and Better Bangor" program. This is a plan to bring industry into the borough and to do anything that will make Bangor a bigger and better place in which to live and rear a family.

"Before the system was installed," Riegel said, "many of the people in the borough complained about the unsanitary conditions due to the overflowing septic tanks.

No More Complaints

"Now the system is in operation and there are no more complaints, or at least I don't get them any more. I also feel that with the new system Bangor has a very good drawing card to attract industry into the area. The plant (sewage) is built to handle more work than it is now getting so there is no worry that industry will cause needed expansion at the plant.

"Another project now underway is the reconstruction of Market St. This is not a complete borough project but one of cooperation with the state.

"It is expected that after Market Street is completed we will start the same thing on Pennsylvania Avenue, and when that is completed there will be work on other streets in the borough.

"With a look into the future council has spoken about the need for a new garage to house borough equipment. The present shed is not large enough to allow proper storage, and the borough is still paying to store its salt and some of its other supplies," Riegel said.

Riegel is proud of some of the more recent accomplishments of council. Included are the recent purchase of a new fire truck for the fire department, a front end loader and backhoe, a police car, and the new lights at the borough library.

He concluded saying, "All of which I have talked about is not the doings of any one man on council but a joint effort of council.

"I believe I'm safe in saying we all work on any issue brought before us with one idea in mind and that is — if it's good for Bangor let's look at it and try our best to do it."

Dr. Strangelove At Sherman

STROUDSBURG — Starting Wednesday at the Sherman Theater, Stanley Kubrick's "Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb," will be shown.

Peter Sellers stars as the President of the United States, one of his three roles in this "hot-line suspense comedy," with George C. Scott appearing as the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The plot of the film is centered in the War Room at the Pentagon in Washington.

In the room there is a circular table — 380 feet in surface area — from which the President of the United States and his staff work to stave off world disaster when a psychotic Air Force General triggers an ingenious, foolproof and irrevocable scheme, unleashing his wing of the B-52 H-Bombers to attack Russia.

Others in the stellar cast are Sterling Hayden, Keenan Wynn, Slim Pickens and lovely Tracy Reed as "Miss Foreign Affairs."

Hamilton Twp. Airs Planning

SAYLORSBURG — Hamilton Twp. supervisors discussed planning in the township at their meeting in the firehouse in Saylorsburg last night.

The supervisors told several taxpayers who attended the meeting that Walter Olenick, township solicitor will be at the meeting, Monday, May 4, to explain planning to all interested persons in the township
